Consolidation of Smaller Counties

Is Expected To Be Recommended By Governor Smith Tonight in a Special Message—Bills Before Lawmakers This Week.

Albany, March 15.—Governor Smith is expected to send a special message to the legislature tonight calling for a consolidation of many of the smaller counties throughout the state.

This proposal first was brought to the attention of the lawmakers by the governor in his annual message. At that time he asserted a consolidation of counties was needed in the interest of economy and efficiency. He said it would save the taxpayers millions of dollars annually.

Early in the session the Republican leaders of the legislature let it be known they had no thought of following the suggestions of the executive regarding county consolidations. They pointed out that a consolidation would mean the loss of many Republican members to the assembly.

The governor urged that the commission headed by Charles E. Hughes, which planned the reorganization of the state government, be continued to make a study of county governments with a view to consolidating many of the smaller counties.

A dozen more measures to carry out the Hughes report for consolidating the 180 state bureaus and agencies into 18 main departments, will be introduced in the senate and assembly this week. All the reorganization bills are expected to be before the lawmakers by the latter part of next week. Ten of these measures were introduced last week.

The Phelps Bill, providing for a 25 per cent reduction in the state income tax will be advanced to the order of final passage in the assembly this week. The Republican majority in the senate is expected to pass the measure next week. It will mean a saving of upwards of $11,000,000 to income taxpayers.

A measure, already passed by the senate, increasing income tax exemptions to conform with the federal law, is scheduled for passage in the assembly tomorrow. It raises the exemptions for married men from $2,500 to $3,500 and for unmarried men from $1,000 to $1,500.

The bill sponsored by Assemblyman Jenks, Republican of Broome, providing for a state wide prohibition enforcement law, is expected to be reported tomorrow by the assembly codes committee. An identical measure has been reported in the senate.

Forbes Sentence Will Stand

Washington, March 15.—Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, who were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the sale of hospital sites, lost their appeals in the Supreme court today.

Forbes and Thompson were convicted in the lower federal court and sentenced to the penitentiary. In addition to being fined. No further appeals are now open to them.

Chapman Is Denied Appeal

Washington, March 15.—Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit, lost his fight before the Supreme court today to escape the noose in Connecticut for the murder of a policeman.

The court refused to review Chapman's sentence.

DARNING NEEDLE TAKEN FROM BABY'S HEAD

Debster, Mass., March 15.—A daring operation on what appeared to be a boil on the head of the five months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Wagner brought to light a steel darning needle two and a half inches long imbedded in the baby's head and saved his life.

The operation, performed hastily by Dr. John Stochaj, who found the infant tossing in pain in its crib, was declared by medical experts today to be entirely successful and a marvel of science.

ANDREWS WILL TAX BOOTLEG WHISKEY

Washington, March 15.—A plan "to make prohibition enforcement earn its own way," was announced today by L. C. Andrews, federal enforcement chief.

Under a provision of the old revenue laws, bootleg whiskey seized by federal agents will be taxed $6.40 a gallon, said Andrews.

Fireman Fatally Injured.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 15.—One fireman was fatally injured during a fire which today destroyed the Mowry department store and damaged adjoining buildings, causing an estimated loss of $300,000.

Had an Injured Leg.

Asa Countryman of No. 23 Hurley Avenue was removed to the Benedictine Hospital this morning with an injured leg. How he was injured was not ascertained.

Facts About Testing of Cows

It is Not Free But the Cost is Trifling—Price Quoted for Condemned Cows is the Maximum—Ask Farm Bureau for Details.

Editor Kingston Daily Freeman:

In a recent issue of your paper in reporting on the discussion regarding the proposed Grade A. Pasteurization proposition, two statements contained have caused confusion.

The statement to the effect that a farmer is paid $162.50 by the state to reimburse him for loss of animals reacting to the Tuberculin test is misleading. The farmer may be paid a maximum of $162.50, plus salvage value, for any one animal but can under no circumstances get more. The state reserves the right to appraise all reactors, placing a fair market value on each. The owner can not under any circumstances receive an amount greater than the appraised value. Appraisals made by the state appraisers have so far been very satisfactory to owners in this county. Tuberculin tested stock, comparing favorably with condemned animals will cost on the average from ten per cent to twenty-five per cent above the amount received for condemned stock.

Another point which I hope to clear up is the statement that the testing is done free of charge to the farmers. This work costs the farmers seventy-five cents per animal per year, the above charge covering the total expense to the farmer for veterinarians fees, use of power disinfecting outfit for disinfecting purposes and necessary disinfectant material. An appropriation of $3,000 per year from the county board of supervisors is used to splice out the receipts from individuals in carrying out this work.

Please state in your columns that farmers interested in tuberculin testing can get information at the Farm Bureau office.

Yours very truly,
MURRAY WIGSTEN,
Manager.

Over 500 Enjoy Lenten Cantata

"The Darkest Hour," Lenten Cantata at First Reformed Church—The Crucifixion on Good Friday Afternoon.

An audience of over five hundred people gathered in the First Reformed Church Sunday evening to hear Harold Moore's beautiful Lenten Cantata, "The Darkest Hour." People were seen in the audience who came from outlying villages as far away as Accord, New Paltz and Saugerties. They were well repaid. W. Whiting Fredenburg, as organist, never played to better advantage on the instrument that he has made his life work and his splendidly balanced and well trained augmented choir never sang a cantata in which the interpretation of the great drama of the Passion of the Savior was so effectively carried out as in last night's cantata. In the processional March to Calvary the wierd tones of the organ gave a touching realism to the scene that was most impressive. The recitative parts by Mrs. Johnston, who sang as narrator the soprano solo parts throughout the cantata were rendered with precision and with much feeling. Mr. Clearwater as bass and Mr. La Tour as tenor and Mr. Finley as baritone sang respectively, "Then Jesus Took unto Him the Twelve," "God so Loved the World," "He Bearing His Cross." The trials before Caiphas and Pilate were forcefully brought out by the male choruses in which the organ became silent, thus allowing for the perfect enunciation of the words. The mixed choruses, in "Now, My Soul Thy Voice Upraising," "And They Laid Hold on Jesus," "And When They were Come to the Place" to the grand finale held the audience spellbound.

Dr. Boeve shortened the early part of the service, limiting his discourse on the "Humility of Jesus" to five minutes. He announced also that the choir would render again Stainer's "The Crucifixion" on the afternoon of Good Friday, at three o'clock. This service of the Passion week instituted last year met with such a hearty response on the part of people that it was immediately resolved to make this a regular service each year. The members of the chorus choir are sopranos, Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, Mrs. I. S. Williams, Miss Frances Osterhoudt, Miss Helen Hasbrouck, Miss Florence Tappen and Miss M. Jean Esterbrook, Mrs. Charles Franklin Doty, Mrs. C. A. Hendricks, Mrs. Harry Walker and Mrs. Harry L. Edson; tenors, Herman LaTour, Frank Elmendorf; bassos, Harry Clearwater, Frank Finley, B. H. Hotaling.

Tacoma Hears of Governor Clinton

Fame of Kingston and Its New Hotel Impressed on Pacific Coast Folks by Shipment of Furniture From Factory of Former Kingstonian.

The issue of the Tacoma News-Tribune of March 2 contains a large picture of a truck load of furniture for the Governor Clinton Hotel leaving the factory of the Gregory Furniture Manufacturing Co. in that city. The head of the Gregory Furniture Manufacturing Co. is a former resident of Kingston, a brother of John H. Gregory. An example of the fame and free advertising that Kingston is already receiving by means of the Governor Clinton Hotel is furnished by the following from the News-Tribune:

When Tacoma visitors in New York state stop at the new Governor Clinton Hotel at Kingston, which is to open May 15, they will lounge back in comfortable chairs and be at home in more ways than one. For the handsome furniture will have come from Tacoma too—the product of the Gregory Furniture Manufacturing Company.

Furniture for the guest rooms of the new hotel constituted a large part of the cargo of the American-Hawaiian Line vessel Californian when she loaded at this port recently. The furniture, expressly designed and manufactured for the hotel by the local manufacturing company, included dressers, desks, dressing tables and bedroom tables for each room and constitute probably the largest single shipment of furniture from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast.

The furniture, made in walnut, with the fronts of the dressers of choice and beautifully figured veneers, butted and skillfully matched, is of attractive colonial design, and the quality is of a distinctively high order. The finish is a rich nut brown color, softly shaded and artistically high-lighted.

The securing of such a contract is a fitting recognition of the product of the Gregory plant and the importance of Tacoma as a furniture manufacturing center which bespeaks a day which is rapidly approaching when large quantities of furniture manufactured in the Pacific Northwest will find its way to Eastern centers.

Kingston, located on the Hudson, half way between New York and Albany, is important as a tourist center, being the gateway to the Catskills, which, with the Adirondacks, constitute New York state's two outstanding recreational and vacational regions.

Its location as the tourist center for the whole Catskill section and its unique distinction as the first capital of New York state and, therefore, a city of exceptional historical interest, makes it the natural home for a modern hostelry such as the new Governor Clinton Hotel.

Sitamore Freed And Rearrested

Mrs. Howard Johnson Vanishes as She Left Her Apartment to Testify at Trial of Sitamore, Captured by Officer Bowser—Sitamore Rearrested.

Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of a song writer, who was robbed of $8,000 worth of jewelry in a sensational hold-up at the Hotel Alamac in New York city two years ago, has been missing since early in February, when she left her apartment in the McAlpin to testify at the trial of Harry Sitamore, it was revealed by District Attorney Banton of New York on Saturday.

Sitamore was charged with complicity in the robbery, and was released on $15,000 bail from the Tombs Saturday and immediately rearrested and held in $2,500 additional bail on a charge of misappropriating a quantity of jewelry in Washington.

Sitamore is the man who was arrested at the point of a gun by Policeman Harold Bowser of the Kingston police force for which deed Bowser was awarded a medal of valor by the police commissioners. Sitamore and a woman, said to be his wife, were driving up North Front street in an automobile when Bowser, who had been asked to be on the lookout for the couple, leaped onto the running board of the car and jammed his gun in Sitamore's ribs commanding him to stop the car and throw up his hands.

Alleged Huge Rum Syndicate Is Unearthed

Federal Grand Jury Returns Blanket Indictment Charging 112 Persons in 11 Cities With Conspiracy to Break Dry Law.

Cleveland, March 15.—The United States Government this afternoon struck the heaviest blow it ever has struck at violators of the National Prohibition Act.

The federal grand jury after after weeks of investigation into the activities of an alleged huge rum syndicate, nation-wide in its scope, returned a blanket indictment charging 112 persons in eleven cities from Massachusetts to California, with a vast conspiracy to break the dry law.

It is an exposure of the operations of what we believe to be the biggest rum ring unearthed since the adoption of the Volstead amendment, said United States District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen, who had charge of the investigation.

The true bill, characterized by District Attorney Bernsteen as the largest ever returned in a federal court, covered 103 closely typed pages, contained 26,000 words and alleged 165 overt acts.

An amazing story of how through the cooperation of the Superior Industrial Alcohol Company, the Prospect Refining and Chemical Company and the Central Refining Company, all of Cleveland, seventy-five car loads of 5,000 gallons each of pure alcohol, were obtained tax free under government license, to be denatured for commercial purposes, and how the entire amount was sold to bootleggers to be retailed by them all over the country was alleged in the true bill.

Officials Bribed.

The government charged that government officials and employes were bribed or hired outright in the carrying out of the big plot.

The indictment specifically charged millionaires, attorneys, Deputy United States internal revenue collectors, railroad special agents and employes, warehousemen, truck drivers, garagemen, business men and others in Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Chicago, San Francisco and San Jose, California, with being involved in the conspiracy.

Agents Worked Six Months.

The evidence on which the federal grand jury brought the indictment was gathered over a period of six months by agents by the intelligence unit of the United States Treasury Department, under the direction of George E. Golding, Atlanta, Ga., assisted by Eugene R. O'Brien, New York, Wilfred Moore and George Foster. This was the first time in history that the intelligence unit of the treasury department was assigned to gather evidence in a liquor law violation case.

Federal agents followed the alcohol trail from coast to coast as it led from distilleries in Louisville, Kentucky, Peoria, Ill., and Waterloo, Iowa, to Cleveland and out again to scores of cities including New York, Buffalo, Omaha and Atlantic City.

Enormous profits were made by the ring leaders, according to the agents, who alleged that the pure alcohol purchased at an average price of fifty cents a gallon was sold to the bootlegger wholesalers at $3 to $4 a gallon. The bootleggers split each gallon into twenty gallons of synthetic gin and sold it at $10 to $25 a gallon.

Big Profits for Bootleggers.

While the indictment charged that only seventy-five carloads of 5,000 gallons of pure alcohol were diverted and sold for beverage purposes, Chief Operative Golding asserted he found records showing that during the period of 18 months covered by the probe, the alleged syndicate withdrew 83 carloads of alcohol from the Peoria warehouse; 50 from Waterloo; 75 from Louisville and 20 from the Weidemann distillery, a total of 228 carloads of alcohol, or a total of 1,140,000 gallons for which was paid about $5,000,000.

If this liquor was sold at $3 a gallon to wholesale bootleggers, the ring received nearly $4,000,000 according to Golding. The retail bootleggers eventually sold this liquor after it was diluted, for nearly $500,000,000, government agents estimated.

The true bill named 31 persons in Minneapolis and St. Paul; 21 in Cleveland; 15 in Duluth; 10 in Philadelphia; 6 in Chicago; 4 in San Francisco and San Jose; three in Pittsburgh, and one each in Detroit and Boston.

Record Crowd at Benefit Movie

Approximately $1,500 Realized For Rebuilding Fund of Kingston City Hospital at Show at Reade's Kingston Theatre.

Reade's Kingston Theatre was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon at the first performance of the benefit shows put on by Manager Roberts of Reade's Kingston Theatre and the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel. At the evening performance for the benefit of the Kingston City Hospital building fund fully 500 people were turned away and the ticket sale stopped at 8:10 o'clock.

It was the fact that the proceeds of the show were to be devoted to the hospital building fund and also the excellent program arranged that brought out the record breaking crowd. The program which had been arranged was of the highest order. Both films shown were feature films and the vocal and instrumental numbers were added attractions. The augmented orchestra under the direction of Jimmie Conners, rendered a number of favorite selections and every number from the overture through to the last selection played during the showing of the picture was appreciated by the audience.

Mrs. Helen Stern-Mann, who needs no introduction to a Kingston audience, rendered several vocal selections accompanied by Miss Ruth Markson and was compelled to respond with an encore.

Harry Lazarus, in bass solos, accompanied by Mrs. Lazarus was also compelled to respond to encores.

At the evening performance Fehmer Chandler, son of Dr. and Mrs. Chandler, appeared in song numbers. This added feature of the program was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience and he too was compelled to answer to encores.

Mayor Morris Block was introduced by Manager Roberts and spoke briefly, expressing his appreciation to the citizens of Kingston for their support and cooperation in making the benefit performances such a success.

Although the people who attended the performances were delighted with the program it remained for the members of the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel to express their delight over the manner in which their appeal was responded to. By the generous support and response of the people of the city and surrounding territory a sum which will reach approximately $1,500 was realized for the hospital. The members of the Sisterhood feel deeply grateful to all those who assisted in making the day a success and desire to express their thanks to the Reade Theatre management and the employes for their assistance.

Youth and Girl Under Arrest

Margaret Burke, 16 Years Old of Poughkeepsie, Held for Children's Court, and George Ennist, 20 Years Old of Hasbrouck Avenue, Held for Hearing.

Sunday evening Policeman Ray Saehloff knocked on the front door of No. 61 Hasbrouck avenue, known to the police as "Tumble Inn" and was admitted by George Ennist, 20 years old, proprietor, whom the officer found partially disrobed.

Walking into the rear of the store where the living apartments are located, the officer found Margaret Burke, 16 years old, of No. 58 Taylor street, Poughkeepsie, who he swears was also partially disrobed.

The officer placed both under arrest. The girl was charged with being a disorderly child and will be arraigned in children's court before Judge Joseph M. Fowler on Wednesday morning.

The young man is held on a charge of impairing the morals of a minor and will be given a hearing in police court before Judge Shufeldt on Wednesday morning. Bail was fixed at $2,500 in the Ennist case by Judge Shufeldt.

The police say that the Burke girl, who has relatives here, had been in Kingston about five weeks.

$147.40 REALIZED FROM SALE OF CANDY

The sale of candy and flowers at the Warren store, Fair street Saturday was a decided success. The proceeds which amounted to $147.40 will go toward the Kingston City Hospital rebuilding fund.

The entire amount realized includes the sale held Sunday in the lobby of Reade's Kingston Theatre. There was some candy and flowers left over from Saturday's sale and these were disposed of Sunday. Mrs. George F. Chandler, Mrs. David Bargevin, Mrs. Ross Gregory and Mrs. Harry Jacobs were in charge of the sale.

ARCTIC EXPLORER TO LECTURE TONIGHT

Thos. E. Benedict Died Sunday

One of Ulster County's Most Widely Known and Highly Respected Residents Comes to the End of a Useful Life.

Thomas Edsall Benedict, widely known and prominent resident of Ulster county, died early Sunday morning at his home, "Brookside," at Napanoch, after a long and honorable career. Mr. Benedict was seventh in the line of descent from Thomas Benedict who was born in Nottinghamshire, England, in 1617, and came to America in 1638, where he became prominently identified with the activities of the colonies. He was a member of the colonial convention at Hempstead in 1665, by order of the colonial governor of New York by authority of the English king.

Born at Warwick, N. Y., on April 3, 1839, Mr. Benedict was a son of Phoebe Burt and William Lewis Benedict, and after receiving an academic education he was associated with a large paper industry at Napanoch, and later took up teaching until 1870, when with his brother, Gilbert H. Benedict, he founded the Ellenville Press, a widely known Democratic weekly, which they successfully published for a number of years.

Mr. Benedict was long active in the political life of the Democratic party in Ulster county and was a member of the assembly at Albany from 1880 to and including 1882, and served with distinction on the ways and means committee and was chairman of the railroad committee of the assembly.

He served his party as chairman of the Democratic state committee in 1883, and was a member of the state committee for several years. Mr Benedict served three years from 1884 to 1886 as deputy comptroller of the state. In 1886 he was appointed public printer by President Grover Cleveland, and had the distinction of being the only public printer, up to that time, who had been reappointed to that office. He served as public printer from 1886 to 1889, and from 1894 to 1897. In 1894 he was one of the two advisory members of the executive committee of the Democratic state committee, Lieutenant Governor Sheehan being the other member.

Mr. Benedict in 1866 married Frances Ackerley, who died in 1883. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker of Kingston and his son, Frederick Scoresby Benedict of Montclair, N. J., and his widow by a second marriage in 1904. Three brothers, Gilbert H. of Catskill; Louis of Ellenville and Howard of Nashville, Tenn., and three sisters, Mrs. Clara Baird and Miss Mabel Benedict of Ganesvoort, and Miss Fanny Benedict of Chester, N. Y., also survive. The funeral will be held from the late residence Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Possessed of a keen and alert mind Mr. Benedict was always active in forwarding the interests of Ulster county, in the history of which he was an authority. He delivered a number of historical addresses which were of interest and was the author of many historical articles. He was also active in having the historic spots in the county appropriately marked.

There were few men more widely and favorably known in Ulster county than Mr. Benedict, and his newspaper work as well as his political activities brought him into contact with an ever extending circle of friends and acquaintances by whom he was held in high esteem. In his death Ulster county has sustained the loss of one of its most representative citizens, whose kindly, cheerful manner and great consideration for others had endeared him to thousands.

SHOWGIRL WOUNDED AND ROBBED BY BANDITS

New York, March 15.—A group of thieves who prey upon young women of Broadway's night life was being sought by police today in connection with a daring robbery which sent Miss Betty Edwards, 24-year-old showgirl, to the hospital with two bullet wounds in her body.

The bandit, who forced his way into Miss Edwards's apartment, stole rings and bracelets valued at $2,500.

The police were working on the theory that the man who committed this robbery may have been a member of a gang who committed numerous other gem robberies, two of which resulted in the slaying of two beautiful young girls—Louise Lawson and "Dot" King.

Houghton Will Arrive Today.

New York, March 15.—Mrs. D. Houghton, ambassador to Great Britain, and Hugh S. Gibson, minister to Switzerland, were due to arrive late today on the liner President Roosevelt. They have been called to Washington to confer with President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg.

Road Park Supper.

The second group of letters of the Flatbush Reformed Church will serve a roast pork supper at the T. N. T. Club house, Flatbush, Wednesday evening, from 5:30 to 8 o'clock, for the benefit of the church. There will also be a musical entertainment.

Two Firemen Killed.

Tourcoing, France, March 15.—Two firemen were killed and fifteen injured while battling a fire which destroyed a cotton goods warehouse today. The damage was estimated at $200,000.

"Dry" War Starts Next December

"Drys" Accept Challenge to Fight Out 1928 Presidential and Congressional Elections—No Chance For a Referendum.

Washington, March 15.—Pointing toward a supreme test in the campaign of 1928, the wet and dry armies today continued to deploy in a series of outpost skirmishes on their congressional battlefield.

A challenge to the drys to fight out the 1928 presidential and congressional elections on the major issue of amending the national prohibition law was issued today by Senator William C. Bruce, (D.), of Maryland, one of the senate's outstanding wet leaders. It was as quickly accepted by Senator Thomas D. Walsh, (D.), of Montana, a dry leader. Thus, so far as the senate is concerned, the great war is two years away and the present agitation is a sort of recruiting race. Bruce proposed a referendum on the dry law to accompany the elections. This suggestion did not meet with much favor among the dry leaders, who pointed out that the elections themselves, if fought out on the prohibition issue, would amount to a referendum.

The sporadic fighting, which has kept congress in an uproar for the last month, is merely a preparedness drive. The big war will be started next December in the second session of the present congress. Big wet and dry offensives will be carried out early in 1928, through the political conventions and into the following November campaigns.

"Our people will carry the prohibition issue into the next congressional elections (in November), of course," said Bruce, "and I hope to see a large increase of the anti-prohibition representation in the next congress. In my judgment, this issue will have a determining influence upon the 1928 presidential campaign.

"I believe, too, a referendum should be taken on this question within the next year. Public opinion is veering fast toward abolishing the present intolerable situation."

"As for the dry viewpoint toward this wet war talk, Senator Walsh said: "We welcome a supreme test at any time, now, next November, or in 1928.

"I don't think there is a chance for a referendum now," Walsh added. "This present agitation is merely the concerted effort of the wets to foment their views. I can find no development of sentiment at least in congress either to modify or change the dry law."

File Tax Returns Before Midnight

Income tax returns should be filed before midnight today. In the case of corporations and of individuals whose net income in 1925 was in excess of $5,000, only tentative returns need be filed, the time for complete returns having been extended to May 15.

The tentative returns must be accompanied by at least one-fourth of the estimated amount of the tax.

In the case of individuals whose net income in 1925 was less than $5,000, complete returns accompanied by at least one-fourth of the tax due must reach the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue before midnight tonight.

KINGSTON MAN INJURED IN AN AUTO CRASH SATURDAY

Frank Markle of this city, driving the Lincoln sedan of Myron Teller sustained a deep cut on the right elbow and contusions about the face Saturday morning in Newburgh and had his wounds dressed at the St. Luke's Hospital where he was taken in a passing taxi. The accident occurred, according to the Newburgh News, when Markle did not observe a driver of a Ford truck signal he was turning into a garage on Broadway, until a short distance from the Ford. Markle applied his brakes, but the Lincoln skidded and crashed into a pole and then into the Ford. The frame of the Lincoln was bent and the top damaged. The Ford was also somewhat damaged.

Decrease in Fatal Accidents

133 Death Claims Were Filed With Bureau of Compensation During February—Important Causes of Fatalities Last Month.

Albany, March 15.—In a statement made today by Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton, he said that 133 death claims were filed with the five local offices of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation during the month of February. This number represents a decrease of 37 as compared with the 170 fatalities reported in January.

The February reports included 88 from the New York city district, 19 from the Buffalo district, 11 from the Albany district, 9 from the Syracuse district and 6 from the Rochester district.

Of these fatal accidents, 36 occurred in manufacturing, 27 in construction, 20 each in transportation, trade and service, and 10 in all other industries.

There were 31 fatal vehicular accidents in February, of which 16 were attributed to steam and electric railways and 11 to automobiles. Ten of those ascribed to steam and electric railways and 7 of those ascribed to automobiles were due to being struck by the vehicle. Of this group of accidents, 19 occurred in the New York district, 5 in the Buffalo district, 4 in the Albany district, 2 in the Rochester district, and 1 in the Syracuse district.

A railroad accident reported by the Buffalo district caused the death of a yard conductor who was attempting to board a moving car when he slipped and fell between the loading platform and the side of the car.

A trucking firm of the Syracuse district reported the death of a chauffeur who was struck by a passing automobile. He had stopped at the curb and was getting out on the left side of his truck.

Falls were responsible for 30 deaths of which 6 were due to falls on a level and 24 to falls from various kinds of elevations. Of these, 9 occurred in construction work and 9 in service while cleaning, repairing or caring for property. The New York district reported 26 of the fatal falls.

This district reported the death of a janitress who was carrying an ash can to the front of the house. She felt a sharp pain in her back and fell, the can falling on her abdomen, causing injuries from which she died 12 days later. She left five children between 5 and 14 years of age.

Eleven fatal accidents were reported in connection with elevators and hoisting apparatus, 7 of which occurred in the New York district, 2 in the Buffalo district and 2 in the Syracuse district. Of these, 4 were accidental falls into elevator shafts. Two of the employes, whose deaths were due to this cause, were women employed in the New York city district.

Other important causes of fatalities were handling objects, with a total of 17; falling objects, 8; explosions, electricity and burns, 8; violence, 5; poisonous substances, 4; and drowning, 3.

One of the deaths caused by burns was that of a cleaning woman employed in the New York city district. She was cleaning tables with gasoline when the cloth with which she was rubbing became extremely hot, causing the gasoline to become ignited.

The Rochester district reported the death of a cook who was burned by escaping steam and hot water when he opened the door of a steam cooker.

Among the fatalities due to poisonous substances were a case of mercurial poisoning and two cases of lead poisoning.

Among the deaths due to drowning was that of a laborer employed in the Albany district. He was drowned while engaged in harvesting a crop of ice from the Hudson river.

Java in History

Batavia, the capital of the island of Java, and of all the Dutch possessions in the East Indies, was built by that people about the year 1619. The French seized the place, but it was captured on August 26, 1811, by a British force, led by Sir Samuel Auchmuty, and restored to the Dutch in 1814.

Importance of Color

Color proportion is more important than color harmony. For the largest areas in the room such as the walls, floor and ceiling use neutral tones, and as areas decrease in size, use brighter colors such as curtains and upholstery pieces and brightest colors perhaps in runners, lamps, pottery, etc.

When hubby tries to quiet the new baby he wonders why on earth no directions came with him.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. Apply it with the fingers. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and flu.

PAUL WHITEMAN

"It was all settled by court action years ago," was the comment of Paul Whiteman, jazz band leader, in Miami, Fla., upon the suit for $10,000 filed by the mother of his first wife to cover the funeral expenses for a child born after the Whitemans had separated in 1909.

In the Right Place

Many accidents had occurred at the foot of a dangerous hill and the county supervisors decided to erect a sign to warn drivers. The board was duly inscribed and handed over to a workman to be erected.

During the day one of the supervisors strolled round in order to see that the work had been done satisfactorily. When he arrived at the brow of the hill he could see no signs of the work.

After waiting for a while he journeyed on down. To his amazement he saw the man digging away at the foot of the hill. "What are you doing?" asked the supervisor.

"I'm making the hole for the notice board," was the reply.

"That's not the place for the board," said the supervisor.

"Well," replied the worker, "this is where the victims land, isn't it?"

Greenpoint Team Here Thursday

Athletci Officer Pete Keresman of the American Legion, announces that he has secured the crack Greenpoint team to face Morgenweck's Kingston Five on the basketball court at the armory next Thursday night. He says that because the Greenpointers beat the Brooklyns last night for the championship of the Metropolitan League, he thinks it is better to get the real champions to play here instead of the near champions. So, the dope now is that the Greenpoint boys will battle with the Morgenweckers on Thursday night.

Frank Morgenweck and the old Kingston team will play in this big game for expenses only, because this game will be a big benefit game for the American Legion Welfare Fund.

It is costing considerable, however, to get the Greenpoint team here, and no doubt the basketball fans will come out in such large numbers that the expense of the game will not be felt.

As advertised elsewhere in The Freeman, the big battle begins on Thursday night at 8:30. There will be a preliminary game at 7:15 between St. Mary's and East Kingston, and as a great deal of rivalry exists between these two outfits, a good, snappy game is assured.

Frank Morgenweck and his old Kingston team will no doubt be anxious to show their best stuff, and the American Legion is bucking them up against a real team, so the fur ought to fly in great old style next Thursday night when they get together.

NEWBURGH ACADEMY TO PLAY RED SHIELDS

The Newburgh Academy quintet, second raters in the DUSO League will be the guests of Captain Miller's Red Shield quintet in Epworth Hall this evening. The last time the Millermen met the Newburgh team it was the second squad and the locals had no trouble to win by a large score. But since the Red Shield's newly gained fame the down-river club is anxious to measure its strength against the locals and will be at its best this evening. The Newburgh team will have Henry the star of their aggregation with them this evening. This match will start at 8 o'clock and there will be a preliminary game at 7 o'clock between two girl teams of the church.

Great Voices Called Accidents of Nature

Great voices are rare and undoubtedly owe their wonderful purity of tone to an accidental combination of those physical characteristics which lead to the production of song. The human musical instrument, though built of living tissues, resembles in structure the reed organ pipe fitted with a vox humana stop. In both cases the note depends on the vibrations of a column of air produced in the organ by a reed and in the voice by the vocal cords. The human air chamber corresponding to the organ pipe is composed of the larynx and the bronchial system beneath it.

The throat, mouth and nasal cavities form the resonators which, by alternation in shape and size, are able to pick out and emphasize certain component parts of the fundamental tones produced in the larynx. The lungs form the bellows which produce the upward blast of air, and upon their quality depends the loudness of the voice.—London Daily Mail.

Famous Eastern Conqueror

One of the most delightful spots in the vicinity of Kabul is the high-walled garden known as the Baber Bagh, in the corner of which is the grave of one of the greatest men that ever lived, Baber, "The Tiger," who founded the dynasty of the magnificent Moguls. This shrine is a place of pilgrimage not for Afghans alone but for people from all parts of central Asia. It was in this garden or just such another, says Mr. Lowell Thomas, that Baber made his plans to lead his Tartar horsemen and burly nomads down to the rich plains of Panipat, near Delhi, where he fought one of the most decisive battles of Asia in 1526. Such colossal booty fell into his hands that he was able to give $10,000 to each of his chief officers, and corresponding rewards in silver and rare silks to everyone not only in his army but in his kingdom.

Significant Nickname

Professor von Valentini, who was chief of the kaiser's civil cabinet of Germany and who was credited with exerting a powerful political influence over the kaiser, died in Hamelin, Prussia at the age of seventy-one. He was known as the "Angel of Political Death," and it was said that he was responsible for the downfall of Count von Bethmann-Hollweg, and for the appointment of Dr. Georg Michaelis as chancellor. The professor's resignation in January, 1918, was hailed by the Pan-German newspapers as a triumph for their cause, and it was stated later that he had been forced out by the militarists because he predicted catastrophe for the German cause.—The Argonaut.

Smart Effects in Milady's Neckwear

Scarfs Are Worn From One Shoulder or Wrapped About Throat.

The number of scarfs and scarf effects in the new spring collections is quite noticeable. Dresses of lace and chiffon destined for evenings at Palm Beach, have trailing filmy scarfs of chiffon in misted colors, or of lace tinted to match the frock. A dress of white silk crepe has side panels and a long shoulder scarf of black chantilly lace. These scarfs are worn from one shoulder or wrapped about the throat and flung over one or both shoulders.

The dress in the sketch shows Chanel's new treatment of a scarf collar. What begins as a trimming band in crepe de chine, ends as a scarf that is brought around the neck and hangs down in back! This two-piece frock has a yoke-back and a skirt that uses the theme of the flare in an original manner. This skirt wraps around and is caught at the side by a real pocket placed rather low. Like the skirts of so many of the new two-piece frocks, the lower edge of this one is bound. Jersey in bois de rose is used for this smart little frock.

Even coats have scarfs sometimes of self material, sometimes made of the lining silk, scarfs that tie in front under the chin or are allowed to hang loose on either side of the center-front opening of a coat.

Speaking of coats leads one to a contemplation of the new wraps shown for southern wear. A great number of the coats in the southern collection show the flare, from the hips or from the shoulder, the capelet, the under-the-arm cape and the shoulder cape. In this connection of flares and capes the few straight-line coats stand out with great distinction. Almost every material is represented—homespun, tweed, kasha and kindred fabrics, fine wool rep, frisca. Several coats were indicative of the coat styles that will appear on our beaches next summer. These were straight coats of Rodier's printed linen with flat white lapin collars. And such prints—startling black, blue and red designs on an oyster ground, designs employing every color under the sun and adding a metallic thread to give the glitter.

Coats of India Prints, Flowered Peasant Cotton

Some of the specialty shops show gayly colored coats of India prints and flowered peasant cottons in vivid dyes. They are picturesque affairs that will be seen more at the Southern resorts and in the country during the coming summer than in town. In the same effect as to design, but of more important fabric, is a coat of which Lanvin is the creator. It is made of tapestry cloth of conventional pattern, in blue, green and beige. The model flares sufficiently to give generous width at the bottom, is lined with beige crepe, and has a deep turnover collar and a band of summer ermine all around the bottom and at the edge of the cuffs. Another coat of Paris authorship is of several shades of white. The geometric pattern, resembling stitching, is done with narrow braid on taffeta.

Some Odd Combinations

Among the odd mixings of materials used are sometimes combined with lace. A welcome afternoon frock for wear about the home is trimmed with insets of black lace or with waterfall skirt frills of lace, tied or chiffon. More ornamental still are black lace frocks trimmed with appliques of exotic flowers set on with gold or silver thread.

Mode in Jewels

Copies of early Victorian jewelry lead the mode in smart things to wear in jewels. Designs of grand charm and originality are to be found in the pieces which faithfully copy the mode of our grandmothers.

Two-Piece Sports Dress of Green Brocade Silk

A charming two-piece sports dress is made of pale green brocade silk, collar and sleeves, tiny tailored pockets being trimmed with heavy white crepe de chine. The sports hat shown on the model is of a darker shade of green milan straw, poke shaped, with brown grosgrain ribbon, and brim bound with same.

Winsome Patterns in New Silks and Crepes

Crepe and chiffons in plain colors and in a great variety of new patterns are used lavishly for afternoon and evening dress from both the French and the American creators. The advanced styles in these materials received from the other side and those shown by American manufacturers earlier in the winter are refined in design. The greater number are woven in pastel shades. With the exception of some striking patterns of cubist character and some that are geometric in feeling, the new fabrics are in floral, Watteau scrolls and "confetti figures," with some distinguished designs inspired, as were the Ferronier silks of last spring, by architectural motifs. This year's prints are exceedingly graceful, with much delicacy of detail and beauty of color. The flower-printed chiffons and voiles are poems in color, with the wistaria roses, orchids and daffodils on backgrounds of fainter tints. Passion flowers, fruit and conventionalized clusters of grapes, vines and leaves are some of the patterns.

Include Slender Lines in Styles for Spring

Sports fabrics express the mannish inclination through imported novelty tweeds, in which subdued colorings and neat, definite designs, achieve that enviable air of smartness with restraint. This type is a godsend to the woman who admires brighter shades now in vogue, but for one reason or another does not wish to wear them.

Such substantial tweeds, in company with jersey, novelty plaids, flannels and bordered woolens is active principally in coat or suit types. In these, despite the presence of capelet theme and shoulder flare, there is a clear survival of straight lines. Even the types noted seek a slim effect, while topcoats, either full or three-quarters length, frequently show a straight silhouette.

This is partly because it is after all the most flattering to women with pounds to hide, and partly because fabrics are so all important just now that they must be set off by the simplest of styling.

Buckle Is Important as Trimming Detail

The buckle contributes one of the most important trimming details of the season. It is quite a glittering ornament when it is of rhinestones and is used to adorn one of the new felt hats or one of satin. The buckle of felt in self or contrasting color is another trimming means frequently employed for smart little felt hats.

Somewhat different is the use of gold kid buckles to finish the gold belt on brown crepe dress. Another buckle, somewhat smaller, finishes the gold kid band which lends the illusion of a two-piece style to this model. A third buckle, smaller still than either of the other two, adorns the very edge of the skirt.

For Evening Gowns

Inspired makes much use of the silver fining lining and scarfed draperies about the hips this season. Evening gowns in the new shades of rose and red, with deep fur bands and Persian jeweled girdle, strike an oriental note. There is more workmanship in the cutting and fitting of the gorgeous materials than there is trimming, to give an effect of elaborateness to what in its reality was simple dressmaking. This expedient is apparent in certain of the less famous houses.

Courage Not Lacking in Neanderthal Man

If one has the Neanderthal type of skull, one ought to find compensation in having the Neanderthal type of physical courage. Not everything in primitive men is to be scorned. He may have been afraid of the thunder and have invented a mythological deity to which he attributed it, but he was not afraid of the wolf or the bear and went forth with his trusty stone ax to slay them.

We only wish that we could retain more of his sturdy qualities. Even the Neanderthal man had a soul. He understood nature and the procession of the seasons, though he had no chronology. He was very prehistoric without knowing it, and he cared very little for remote posterity, but he was solicitous of the welfare of his immediate descendants or we should not be here.

He was a creature of prodigious appetite and all his little Neanderthals had appetites in proportion, so that the daily hunt for food was his chief occupation. Sometimes he came home empty handed, but when he did make a killing there was a family gorge.

He was a being not decidedly like us anatomically and had a use for his vermiform appendix. Sometimes his intellectuals may have been stirred; and as he sat on the plazas of his cave of an evening, he may have pondered. A fine sunset may have stirred him, but not so much as the scent of a mastodon. That stirred him mightily or made him move. He went inside the cave.

He may have experienced a tenderness with the helpless children, unless the infanticidal practices of his descendants [illegible] and contemporaries.

Quilted Silks, Satins, Make Handsome Coats

The quilted silks and satins make very handsome coats for spring, afternoon and theater wear. The smartest model for this sort of coat has straight lines, and it is invariably fashioned with the aid of the quilted cuffs for spring are made of taffeta in black, with cuffs of white for, and in beige, King's blue, or gray. Peach squirrel, summer ermine and others of the short furs are used for trimming. Materials never treated as before are now quilted. A quilted coat just brought out is made of jade green glazed chintz—the kind we are accustomed to see in hangings and upholstery. It is lined with light tan kasha cloth and has a collar and narrow cuff bands of summer squirrel matching the fur in color. Another coat of this imported glazed cotton is a lovely shade of blue with collar and cuffs of white rabbit. It is a charming house wrap.

Brakes Didn't Support Him

At a recent trial in a London city a young man was suing for damages following injuries suffered in a street car accident. An automobile test had shed that a car traveling 20 miles an hour could be stopped in a space of 20 feet. The young man's counsel decided vehemently the motorman's statement. Then the judge and jury went to the scene of the accident and gave the motorman a chance to demonstrate.

A special speedometer, consisting of a wheel attached to the side of the car, was used in the test, says Popular Science Monthly. Measurements made by this instrument showed that the best the driver could do, with the car going 20 miles an hour, was to stop the car in a space of 108 feet.

THE WOMAN TO PAY.

In these days of so many new developments we have almost ceased to be surprised at anything, yet it is a little startling to read that a wife has been awarded $200,000 from a woman for alienating her husband's affections. Our legal code has been built up on the assumption that women are more in need of special provision and protection than men, and, though modern feminists spurn all this and demand abolition of such insulting discrimination, there are still old-fashioned conservatives who believe that our original theory was well based. But now, it would appear the courts are tending toward the feminist view—that a woman should be held responsible in every particular equally with a man, she also being liable to offend and being fully as able to take care of herself as he is to look after his own interests.

At any rate, the Supreme Court of New York has ruled that a woman must pay the bill this time. Instead of divorce and heavy alimony paid by the man, as usual, Miss Corliss Palmer, a screen actress, must pay $200,000 to Mrs. Brewster for capturing and carrying off Eugene V. Brewster, "wealthy New York magazine publisher." The decision implies that a man may be weak and misled and that a woman may be the resolute perpetrator of the mischief. It is rather a startling reversal of the current ideas of former times, but it is possible that those ideas were not always strictly correct or wholly equitable. At all events we live in a new age, with new developments out of harmony with old customs liable at any time. As regards this particular case, our feminists, at least, ought to be satisfied—and presumably Miss Palmer is well able to pay the bill for her family-disrupting amusement.

A SOPHISTICATED BEAST.

Wild beasts, like the evil tendencies of men to which they have been compared, are sometimes hard to get rid of or extirpate. Usually predatory animals can be reduced in number or kept within bounds by the hunter's gun and the farmer's trap, but it seems that the swift-footed and cunning prairie wolf or coyote is a marked exception. His ability to keep beyond range and his marvelous craftiness in avoiding the pitfalls prepared for him indicate a cunning surpassing that of intelligent humans. Some time ago the Federal government undertook to exterminate this pest and the States of the Northwest joined heartily in the effort, but the coyote snapped his fingers, so to speak, at even this formidable combination of his enemies, and now, after a fruitless campaign, a halt has been called in order to consider methods with more promise and involving less heavy costs.

The trouble seems to be that the coyote is too "sophisticated." The California board of agriculture has decided that the ordinary trap will not serve because "a coyote crippled becomes a greater menace on account of its sophistication." In Idaho and Montana it seems to have been concluded that in the case of this "most sophisticated of wild animals" traps are no good and poison is worse than useless. Government hunters and trappers have been putting out poison in the woods and on the ranges only to have the knowing coyote sniff at the bait, grin and pass on. And now, according to an Idaho editor, "unless this practice is discontinued there will not be a good dog left in the whole country, and the disappearance of birds and other wild life will become a fact." Anybody able to cope with the sophisticated coyote can doubtless count on liberal reward from both a baffled government and the troubled authorities of the west.

At the "enforcement crisis" convention of the Anti-Saloon League last autumn, the Rev. Sam Small was reported as proposing that the army and navy be pressed into service. He now seems to doubt whether even that would meet expectations. Judging from reports of his recent remarks in Savannah. According to the Valdosta, Ga., Times: "The Rev. Mr. Small says the Administration is going to put the enforcement of the prohibition law up to the States, so that each State can have what it wants—bootleggers and home-brew factories or stop the traffic if it can. Mr. Small says it will take an army ten times the size of our present army and an appropriation of $100,000,000 a year to enforce the law, and that the jails and prisons would not hold the violators."

MIDDLE AGE.

One of our research men has worked out some diet rules to combat high blood pressure.

The advice is all very sensible and practical, but the first thing that must occur to every thinking person is, that the rules suggested would just about suit every man and woman of fifty or over, even if he or she were perfectly healthy, and had the normal blood pressure for their age.

For instance he suggests that overeating must be avoided. In fact the food intake must be cut down in quantity. If this should cause constipation, then fruits, green vegetables, even a little bran might be used daily.

Meat, fish or fowl should be eaten but once a day. Only one egg to be eaten daily.

All highly spiced foods to be avoided.

Sweets to be used but only in moderation.

The diet should be composed largely of green vegetables, potatoes, cereals, fruits, rice, whole wheat bread, with "limited" desserts.

Salt should be used sparingly, and tea and coffee not more than a cupful at each meal at the most.

Now the above rules are known and must appeal to everybody, but the two things that mean real abundant health to people, are the very two things about which they will not use their own common sense.

That is food and exercise.

Because it can be obtained the average man thinks of food as something to be enjoyed, and a good appetite is a blessing sent from Heaven.

The appetite is not a safe guide any more, because food is so attractive in taste and appearance, that the brain part of the appetite tempts one to eat too much.

The body is covered thickly with muscle, and it is the working or using of that muscle by work or exercise, and that only, that entitles you to eat large meals.

You must eat because food is needed to maintain all the organs of and functions of the body, but the amount needed by a man or woman of middle age, whose work is office or household duties, is just about half as much as one working hard outdoors, and using all the muscles of the body.

And exercise? To many folks that simply means work in disguise and they'll have none of it.

And yet this very work would make life safer, should they be blessed, or should we say cursed, with a good appetite.

Oneida County, Named for Indians Who Remained Loyal to America, Erected March 15, 1798.

The Dutch, who originally settled and governed the territory within the present limits of the State of New York, called it New Netherland. As late as 1638 that portion of it lying west of Fort Orange (Albany) was termed the "Unknown Land."

In 1674 the Dutch finally surrendered the colony to the English, and it was named New York, in honor of the Duke of York, to whom the colony had been granted by Charles II, in 1664. It had, however, been surrendered by the Dutch Governor Stuyvesant, in 1664, to the English, by whom it was held until 1673, when it was taken by the Dutch, and held by them until the next year.

In 1683 the colony was divided by its Legislature into twelve counties: New York, Albany, Dutchess, Kings, Queens, Orange, Ulster, Richmond, Suffolk, Westchester, Dukes and Cornwall. In 1768 and 1770, the counties of Cumberland and Gloucester were added.

Dukes and Cornwall, after a bitter controversy, were surrendered to Massachusetts, in 1693; a part of Gloucester and Cumberland was, after a quarrel, ceded to New Hampshire, and forms a part of Vermont; and the portion of the two counties retained was formed into a county called Charlotte, now Washington county.

In 1772 the county of Tryon was formed from Albany. But the name Tryon having become obnoxious from the active hostility of Governor Tryon during the Revolution the name was changed April 2, 1784, to Montgomery, in honor of the hero of Quebec.

By the same act Montgomery county was divided into five districts, called Mohawk, Canajoharie, Palatine, German Flats and Kingsland. German Flats district included all the western part of the state, and was then an unbroken forest, excepting a few German settlements on the Mohawk-Kingsland.

By the act of March 7, 1788, Clinton county was erected and the boundaries of the several counties defined.

On January 27, 1789, Ontario county was formed from Montgomery, and on February 16, 1791, the latter was again divided when Tioga, Otsego and Herkimer were formed from its territory. Saratoga county was taken from Albany February 7, 1791; Onondaga county was erected from Herkimer March 5, 1794; Schoharie county was cut from Albany and Otsego, April 6, 1795; Steuben was taken from Ontario March 18, 1796; Rensselaer was set off from Albany, February 7, 1797; Delaware was taken from Otsego and Ulster, March 19, 1797; and Rockland was set off from Orange county on February 23, 1798.

By act of March 15, 1798, Chenango county was formed from Herkimer and Tioga, and Oneida was set off from Herkimer.

The organization of Oneida which was the twenty-fourth county in the state is of interest. The name is Iroquois meaning "standing rock." The Oneida were the only Indians of the Iroquois Confederacy who sided with the Americans in the Revolution, and upon the soil of this county were enacted some of the most important events in that great struggle for independence.

The portage at Rome, from the Mohawk to Wood Creek, had become important as early as 1725, and Fort Bull which was built upon it, was surprised by French and Indians, March 27, 1756. Fort Stanwix was erected in 1758 on the site of the present city of Rome, and here many important treaties were held with the Six Nations. Near here was fought the memorable battle of Oriskany, August 6, 1777. This battle was the turning point in the Revolution and made possible the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga, which event influenced the French to come to the aid of the struggling colonies.

Settlement had extended to the borders of the county before the Revolution; but every vestige of improvements was swept away during the war. Civilization reappeared with peace, and the construction of roads and the Erie Canal attracted the hardy pioneers of New England, and today the county ranks among the first in the state.

Utica, the county seat, is famous for the excellence of its woolen, cotton and knit goods, also for its large number of diversified manufactured products.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE THORN-TAILED DIBB.

Here is a rather cumbersome and innocuous game animal found in northern England along the Scottish border, whose flesh forms the principal dish at the annual "Dibbfests" which take place on the king's birthday. It cannot lie down because it has no knees and cannot sit down because it cannot get the uncomfortable tail out of the way, so it is forced to sleep standing. The hunters simply push the sleeping dibb over with long poles and proceed to cut it up into steaks and chops.

The above snapshot taken last summer in the Cheviot Hills shows a dibb trying to decide whether to risk going to sleep or not. The head is a peanut with split peanut kernel ears, the neck and legs are toothpicks, and the body is a small filbert. A well developed sand-burr is required for the tail.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

SHALL IT BE INDEPENDENCE?

Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.—Reports received here daily, most of them in letters to the members of the Continental Congress, indicate clearly that sentiment in favor of an early and complete separation from Great Britain is growing rapidly throughout the colonies. Most of these communications are of a confidential nature and are not given out for publication, but it is not difficult to sense the trend of affairs.

The quelling of the Tory uprising in North Carolina has heartened the advocates of independency. Latest reports from General Washington give assurance that his campaign to drive the British army out of Boston is about to end in complete success. It is not yet known here where the enemy will go. If to New York, that will mean only a shifting of the main center of activities to another point where conditions may be less favorable to the cause of the Continent than they have been in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. But to compel the evacuation of Boston and leave the Continent entirely free of eney armies, if only for a few days, will be no small achievement.

All the latest reports from the Canadian front are most disquieting. It seems certain that, unless a large force can be sent there immediately, all that has been accomplished since November will go for nothing. The American besieging force at Quebec and the garrison now in possession of Montreal under Colonel Benedict Arnold must be heavily reenforced before the British Ministry pours into Canada the immense army of British regulars and Hessians which, according to advices recently received by the Committee on Correspondence is now being equipped for service in America.

No news has been received from the navy since it sailed under Admiral Hopkins on February 17. Some word of its whereabouts should have arrived by this time if it encountered the enemy early in its cruise. Or it may have undertaken some other mission the exact nature of which has not been made public.

The powder shortage still causes great concern. Unless much greater quantities of this article are soon available, all plans for army enlistments may have to be abandoned temporarily.

However, despite these military considerations, favorable and unfavorable, the independence party in Congress and in the provincial congresses and conventions is steadily pushing forward with plans which would mean the snapping of the last tie with the king's government, and not a few of the more conservative leaders are coming around to the side of the outspoken advocates of complete independency.

Bankers Survey State Bank Laws

Find That Movement for State Guaranty of Bank Has Gone Into Eclipse.

NEW YORK.—A survey of state banking laws conducted by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association shows marked progress toward greater uniformity and more efficient bank supervision, it is declared by Frank W. Simmonds, in charge of the division, in a statement giving the results of the investigation. He says that the movement for state guaranty of bank deposits appears to have gone into eclipse.

"The division has urged that the office of bank commissioner be freed from politics and all other functions of state government and tenure be made more secure with sufficient compensation and discretion to attract men of outstanding ability," Mr. Simmonds says. "Gratifying progress has been made during the past year in important bank legislation in many states. Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon led the list by adopting entirely new modern banking codes, while Texas and Montana have new codes in preparation.

Uniformity Among State Laws

"The survey shows that it is generally agreed there should be a high degree of uniformity among the states in laws dealing with certain fundamental principles of bank organization regulation and supervision, and that there is a strong tendency in this direction. We find a very definite trend toward increasing the minimum capital requirements of banks to $25,000; creation of banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissioner, and legislation empowering bank commissioners to take complete charge of insolvent banks and to liquidate them as distinguished from liquidation through the courts.

"We find also a trend toward legislation providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations; more equitable taxation of bank stock; legislation providing for merger, conversion or consolidation of banking institutions; the legalizing and regulating of what is known as 'departmental banking'; broadening the field for investment of funds of saving banks and trust companies, and increasing the power of the bank commissioner as to granting or denying charters for new banks, and authorizing his making reasonable rules and regulations governing bank management and prescribing penalties for the violations thereof.

"Additional general characteristics of state bank legislation are for increasing the compensation of the bank commissioner and lengthening his term of office of four, five or six years, with power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners; legislation providing for the reducing of mandatory bank calls to three and reducing the number of examinations required by law annually to one; making 'issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor;' limiting or prohibiting an officer or director of a bank borrowing from his bank unless his collateral is approved by a majority of the board of directors, and limiting or prohibiting the opening of branch banks.

Eclipse of Guaranty Movement

"The question of state guaranty of bank deposits appears this year to have passed into an eclipse, so far as the extension of the idea is concerned, notwithstanding the fact that state guaranty laws were recommended by the governors of two states, and bills were introduced in several of the states, all of which were defeated. The general tendency, so far as state guaranty of deposits laws are concerned, is distinctly the other way, the indications being that several states now having guaranty laws are trying to free themselves from this legislation. Oklahoma has abandoned the plan of state guaranty of deposits, and this year the South Dakota legislature has repealed the state guaranty law and has referred the repeal to the people at the next general election for ratification."

BANKERS RAISE FUND OF $500,000 FOR EDUCATION

A fund of $500,000 to endow scholarships and research in economics in American colleges was recently established by the American Bankers Association in celebration of its Golden Anniversary. The intention of the Foundation is to promote education in the direction of sounder general economic understanding. Half the total sum represents subscriptions by the American Bankers Association, the American Institute of Banking and individual bankers, and the other half quota assigned to bankers in each state. The Association gave $50,000 from its reserve funds, and the American Institute of Banking, through individual subscriptions from its members, who are chiefly clerks in the banks, subscribed $25,000. Numerous subscriptions of $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000 each were made by individual bankers in all parts of the country.

Smile Tonight

MANY heartaches come from "off-color" teeth. Teeth that ruin pretty smiles. Now dingy teeth, as dental authorities prove, can be restored to whiteness quickly.

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully clear off. A film that absorbs food discolorations, etc.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a slippery coating covering your teeth. Beneath it are the white teeth you envy often in others. It keeps your smile unattractive. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea.

Dentists say the way to remove it is with the new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent. All druggists have it. Works wonders on dingy teeth.

Fat Society Women Quit Diet; Use Gum

Science has discovered a remarkable, new fat-reducing treatment which makes starving diets unnecessary. Stout Fifth Avenue matrons, always on the lookout for newer and better ways to keep shapely, have reported [illegible] pounds a week from this [illegible]ment. It consists of taking a certain harmless medicinal ingredient, purely vegetable—free from thyroid and dangerous drugs—which quickly dissolves the fat cells. It acts quickest when well chewed. Hence it is embodied in a delicious-ly flavored chewing gum called "Slends." Local druggists have stocked a good supply so we can all follow Fifth Avenue's lead and "Slenderize with Slends."

Look Out For Hang-on Coughs—Dangerous Colds

New Tablet Form of Iron and Cod Liver Oil Surest Way to Keep Well

Follow the plan used by sailors, lifesavers and others who are exposed to raw weather. Fortify your system against colds, influenza and grippe. Stop that dangerous cough now.

Iron combined with Cod Liver Oil gives you the good, solid flesh and rich red blood that makes exposure harmless and you can now get cod liver oil and iron combined in easy-to-take tablets with the useless, fishy-tasting part left out.

Specify Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets at your drug store. Take them every day. Then your blood will be so rich and course so healthfully, that you can laugh at blizzards and colds.

A Sour Note

In a certain midwestern university their grades are used, A, B, C, D and E, the latter standing for complete failure. A student recently appended the following brief note to his yearly written papers:

"Dear Professor: I know this is very bad; but I have been awfully busy leading the campus singsongs and have had little time for study."

When the paper was returned, it bore a short annotation. The professor had drawn a musical clef and inserted a single note—E flat. Beneath he had written, "Sing this!"—Worth's Companion.

Presbyterian Church Activities

Ladies' Aid Society Donates $25 to Hospital Fund—Women's Missionary Society Elects Officers—Two New Members Received at Communion Service.

At the annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Rondout Presbyterian Church the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. John R. Monroe; first vice president, Mrs. Irving W. Scott; second vice president, Mrs. Charles R. O'Connor; treasurer, Miss Mary McCullough; secretary, Mrs. Arthur H. Russell.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the church has contributed $25 to the Kingston City Hospital toward the replenishment of their stores. The ladies will meet in the chapel Thursday afternoon to hem napkins for the hospital.

The church family suppers will be resumed Thursday evening and the supper committee is headed by Mrs. Arthur H. Russell. The attendance at these suppers and study hours is very large.

This evening the Westminster Guild will hold a "St. Patrick's Day" party at the home of Miss Eleanor O'Connor on West Chestnut street.

Sunday morning at the communion service two new members united with the church, Woodrow Wilson Diehl and Fred James Ennist. The pastor, the Rev. Charles G. Ellis, took as his sermon topic "The Exceeding Worth of Joining the Church" and gave one of the best sermons heard in the church in some time.

"You are an hour late this mornin, John," said the farmer to the new helper.

"Yes. I was kicked by a horse on my way here."

"That oughtn't to have detained you an hour, John."

"Well, you see, governor, he kicked me the other way."

Early Postage Stamps

Prior to the use of postage stamps, which were first issued in 1847, postmasters used what were known as provisional stamps. These were in the nature of a rubber stamp which served the purpose of postage. It showed the prepayment of postage and was similar to the postmark on letters today, and usually bore the word "Paid," name of the office and the amount of the postage received.

Black Lace and Tulle Play Stellar Roles in Spring Evening Modes

The use of ruffled tulle for evening frocks injects a dainty and attractive note of youth into the newest dance frocks. There are several charming frocks which merit attention not only because they have charm but because they are relatively inexpensive. Since one needs dance frocks more or less by the dozen these nights, economy is worth considering. That the net shawl be a contrasting color from the slip and that it shall always be longer, are details which count. Skirts are frequently ruffled, and the bodice join them about the natural waistline where, not infrequently, a ribbon sash of a vivid contrast is added, this sometimes being of velvet ribbon, sometimes of two-tone satin, and, in nearly every instance the ends fall far below the skirt level. The exception to this is the sash which has no ends, and is bowed directly at the front.

Callot sponsored ruffled and tiered skirts at their recent openings, and remained loyal to the uneven hemline, which meets with universal approval for anything which breaks the straightline of the hem usually spells grace.

A Bois de Rose Chiffon Gown, and Lace Dyed to Match Which is Used on a Cape Back, the Ends of the Tight Gypsy Girdle, a Shirred Apron, and an Overskirt.

That very fine black lace dresses are again in favor everyone must by this time realize, they must however be diaphanous in effect and are for this reason rather more likely to be made over a color.

The striking and sparkling combination of crystal embroideries on black lace, net or chiffon which is poised over color is a pleasing note. In one instance a bolero of chiffon was rather elaborately beaded in crystals, the foundation of being flesh color satin and the material chicon. Chiffon ranks very high for evening wear and continues to run the gamut of color not exclusive of yellow, rather neglected of recent seasons. Yellow and crystal is quite as lovely as can be desired, and the combination of yellow and blue, so approved for resort wear is effective after six. Many laces, and lingerie effects are dipped a deep chrome, and one hardly needs to be reminded that the yellow of gold has as much allure as ever. It hardly seems possible that at any time in the history of fabrics, regal materials in which metals were involved could have been more in use than in the days of a much boasted democracy.

THINGS WORTH TRYING

All children know how to prepare maple wax if they live where the snow flies. Ice may be scraped and used as snow if the latter is not obtainable. Pour the boiling-hot maple sirup on the ice or snow and when cool, fall to, and eat the crisp deliciousness.

Barbecue of Porterhouse.—Have a cut of porterhouse about three and one-half inches thick and containing a good piece of tenderloin. Trim into shape and skewer well. Mix two tablespoonfuls of dry mustard with one teaspoonful of salt, the same of white pepper and a dash of cayenne, add to these four tablespoonfuls of creamed butter and rub the mixture well into the meat on both sides and edges. Place on a grate over a pan and set under the gas flame. Have two tablespoonfuls of olive oil mixed with one teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce and brush the steak every five minutes with this mixture, reducing the heat after the steak is well seared over. Cook forty-five minutes. The brush should be dipped into the gravy in the pan after the juice begins to drip. Rub with more dry mustard with the moistened brush just before it goes to the table.

Thousand Island Dressing.—Put into a pint fruit jar one-half cupful of olive oil, the juice of half a lemon and half an orange, a teaspoonful of onion juice, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard and three sprigs of parsley, chopped fine. Put on the rubber on the can and cover tightly. Shake vigorously and let stand an hour before using. A teaspoonful of powdered sugar is liked by many to modify the acid, and green pepper chopped is another addition.

Cherry Pudding.—Take one egg, one-half cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, and one cupful of drained cherries. Steam or bake. Serve with the juice of the cherries, a bit of almond flavoring and whipped cream with sugar.

Supported by Eight

Calhoun Clay was a typical modern parent. As he looked in front of the garage a minister stepped and said:

"Cal, why don't you go to work?"

"Scuse me, reh," Cal answered with dignity. "Ah's got eight chillun to support—"

"Well," interrupted the minister, "you can't support them by loafing here in front of this garage."

"Scuse me, reh," Cal went on, "Low me ter finish mah remark, reh. Wot Ah means ter say is dat Ah's got eight chillun ter support me."

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, March 15.—George Shultis of the south side spent Sunday with his daughter in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rider of Washington avenue have returned after spending a few days in New York city.

Mrs. E. T. Bovee of first street is spending some time with her daughter in Syracuse, N. Y.

Milton Wright of this village has purchased a seven passenger Nash touring car from the Ulster Garage of Kingston.

The meeting of the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday evening. Business of importance will be brought before the meeting.

Philip Van Etten of Lafayette street, who has a large lumber contract in Staten Island, spent the week end at his home.

Stephen Dickboudt of Main street spent the week end in New York city.

Mrs. Blanche Nolan of Clermont street has accepted a position as bookkeeper and business clerk with the Borst Grocery Company at Kingston.

Miss Jennie Hanna and Miss Fannie Post will vacate the hat shop on May 1. At that date the Hanna hat shop will continue business upstairs over Krieger & Rightmyer on Main street.

The Merry Melody Orchestra will furnish the music for the St. Patrick's social dance to be held in St. John's hall at Veteran.

Philip Swilling has purchased a Ford coupe from Clinton Van Buskirk's garage on Partition street.

The Martin pharmacy has received a large shipment of garden seeds which may be purchased by package or bulk.

Thomas Wildey Encampment, I. O. O. F., worked the Patriarchal and Golden Rule degrees on a class of candidates on Friday evening.

Louis Cashdollar, who has been in the Benedictine Hospital for the past seven weeks, has returned to his home in this village. Mr. Cashdollar has had a portion of his hand amputated, due to blood poison.

A public health meeting will be held by the Saugerties Monday Club at the high school auditorium on Monday evening, March 29.

The condition of Max Ersbler on Russell street is reported to be somewhat improved. Mr. Ersbler is ill with pleuro-pneumonia.

The Rowland Lodge at 70 Main street will open for business on or about March 15th.

Miss Lillian E. Hagelweide, R. N., Ulster county Tuberculosis nurse, will hold a clinic in Saugerties on Wednesday, March 24.

The convention of the Saugerties fire department was held held in R. A. Snyder Fire Company rooms on Partition street on Sunday afternoon.

Josiah Perks of Elm street had the misfortune to have a heavy iron bar fall on his foot on Thursday afternoon while at work in the Martin Cantine Company, breaking one of his toes. Dr. B. W. Gifford was called.

Miss Louise Snyder of the New Paltz Normal spent the week end with her parents on Partition street.

Miss Post of Clermont street spent Sunday with her sister in Catskill.

Arnold Van Aken is ill at his home on Malden avenue.

Miss Grace Pierpont of the high school faculty is able to be about after an illness of grip.

The Camp Fire Girls of Trinity Church, assisted by the older members of the organization, will celebrate the anniversary of the founding of Camp Fire this week. Two entertainments will be given at the community assembly hall, the first one to take place on Tuesday evening with an assembly and dance for adults with music being furnished by the Saugerties Four orchestra. The second one will take place on Wednesday afternoon for young people over twelve years of age who are still in school and the Girl and Boy Scouts are especially invited to attend. All desiring to attend will kindly notify Mrs. J. T. Washburn Barclay Heights, as the hall is only large enough to accommodate a limited number of guests. Admission is fifty cents and the proceeds will be presented to Miss Beers's Sanitarium, a local institution.

Miss Lonella Garrity of Shandaken spent the past week with Miss Agnes Donlon on Washington avenue.

Lewis Carle of Butler, N. J., was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Albert Burr on Montgomery street the past few days.

The Ministerial Association of Saugerties will hold a union Passion Week service in the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, April 1st.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Martin Cantine, who are spending some time at the Highland Park Hotel in Aiken, South Carolina, that they will remain there until April 1.

On Tuesday evening the fifth annual musical of the E. F. C. H. group of the Ladies Aid Society will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Word has it that the Masonic Lodge of this village is thinking seriously of purchasing the old First National Bank building located on the corner of Main and West Bridge streets. This would make an ideal place for a temple for the local lodge.

Miss Elizabeth Rowe of Market street is spending some time in Long Island and New York city.

Mrs. Mabel Molineux has just returned to he rhome on Ulster avenue after spending several weeks in the "Holy Land" abroad.

The building situation in Saugerties for the coming spring looks good and many contemplate erecting homes.

A still alarm was sent in to the Saugerties Fire Department on Sunday afternoon which brought out the firemen to the house of Louis Fellows on Market street where they extinguished a chimney fire.

Mr. Nutter of the Maxwell House was in New York city on Sunday.

Miss Arline Conyes of the Benedictine Hospital spent Sunday with her mother on Washington avenue.

A Hupmobile coupe driven by Winfield Snyder of the Van Buskirk garage and a Franklin car driven by William Myers of West Saugerties came together on the Blue Mountain road. It is understood that a considerable amount of damage was done.

Miss Hattie MacMullen has returned after spending some time in Syracuse.

HOLD VILLAGE ELECTION AT SAUGERTIES TUESDAY

Village officers for the village of Saugerties to succeed those whose term of office expire on the 22nd of March will be elected on Tuesday from four to eight p. m. in the trustees' room on Main street, as follows:

A trustee for two years in place of William D. Brown.

THE HORNED SNAKE

"I've arrived in the zoo," said the Horned Snake "and if anyone wants to hear my hissing story, let them hear it now, for in a few moments I am going to curl up and sleep for a week or two."

"Let us hear your story," said the other creatures in the reptile house.

"The people all came to see the horn which grows between my eyes upon my forehead," said the Horned Snake.

"That really shouldn't be there. They thought perhaps that was the way I was born, but it was not. Years ago the spur from a rooster was flung at me, and so it grew on my forehead, and still it is there.

"It is there for life now, and while it hurt when it was first flung at me, I am glad now that I have such a queer thing about me, for everyone comes to look at me, and to see how strange and interesting I am.

"Ah, yes, friends, when one is no longer a baby, when one has passed the age of seventy-five, it is well to have interesting things about one, for if not, the young are apt to be so indifferent.

"I was born in Texas, and I am a rattlesnake. I'm almost eight feet in length, though you can't see that because I'm already in my sleeping position.

"Yes, fellow reptiles, hiss, hiss, I am soon going to sleep, for I had a fine meal just now. I almost had something which was not meant for me.

"In appreciation of the meal, and in my hurry to eat the goodies I beheld, I almost bit off the hand of the keeper. He didn't mean me to have his hand at all, not even for dessert!

"However, I didn't mind if I didn't get it, for I had quite enough without it, but it did show how grateful I was to get all I could when I tried to grab for the hand, too."

"I guess the keeper was thankful you didn't get the chance to show you were that grateful," hissed another snake.

"Oh well, it will not bother me," said the Horned Snake, "for I ate well, and now I will sleep well. I will not say a good-night, but a good two weeks, for I shall sleep that long, I shall, and I wish myself a pleasant two weeks' sleep."

The Boa Constrictor was talking now. "It's all very well for people to squirm and to say that they don't like snakes."

"Do they say such things?" asked the Rock Python.

"They most certainly do," said the Boa Constrictor, as he wriggled a little to show how annoyed he was.

"Well, I never heard anything to equal that," said the Rock Python. "I like people, all right. I wouldn't mind hugging one right now."

"Ha ha," hissed the Boa Constrictor, "you'd hug the person so hard that it would be the last hug the person would ever get."

"Well," said the Rock Python, "if it was going to be the last hug it ought to be a good one, eh?"

"It surely ought to be," hissed the Boa Constrictor.

"Now, what is this you tell me about people not liking snakes?" asked the Rock Python.

"I said they didn't like snakes—that is, many people don't like them. It's not only the dangerous snakes they mind, but the little baby snakes and the truly harmless snakes. They seem to dislike creatures which crawl and squirm and wriggle and hiss. Such stupid creatures—people are!"

"It's so lovely to crawl and squirm and wriggle and hiss," said the Rock Python.

"And they don't," said Boa, "stop to think which snakes are poisonous and which aren't. Very few of the large snakes like yourself, for example, are poisonous."

"What would I do with the power to poison?" asked the Rock Python. "It would be so useless. Crushing and crushing and crushing still more—that is the way I would end a creature's life if I were going to do such a thing."

"But you can't do such a thing," said the Boa Constrictor. "You're locked up so you can't, and, anyway, when you are free, you live far, far, far, far away from where any of these people live."

PHEASANTS FEED THEMSELVES.

Survey in Central New York Shows the Birds Wintered Well.

Albany, March 15.—A survey to determine just how pheasants wintered in central New York, made by Harry T. Rogers, Superintendent of the State Game Bird Farm at Sherburne, shows that the birds have wintered well.

In his report transmitted to the Conservation Commission through Llewellyn Legge, Chief Game Protector, he says:

"Central New York has had a very heavy snow fall this winter and in fact this applies to the whole state—at least a foot to a foot and a half of snow on the level with a thick coating of ice. One could hardly imagine a more severe condition for the pheasants to contend with, not even a bare spot of ground where the wind had blown the snow from or weed top showing above the surface.

"The ground has been completely covered for the past seven or eight weeks and the thermometer below zero most of the time.

February 20th with two other persons with team and bob sled, I started out to feed the pheasants with corn on the cob, but the main object of the trip was to note the general condition of the pheasants and learn how they were able to secure sufficient food and survive under such trying circumstances.

"During the seven hours' trip, 317 pheasants were counted—the average number found together ranged from six to 12 birds. We found at least 20 other places where pheasants had been feeding during the day but were absent at the time we were there. Even with the severe conditions they do not show any ill effects—they were strong on wing—many were feeding on sumac berries, which grow from eight to ten feet high; others feeding on vegetation such as buds of wild black berries which are plentiful in all parts of this state as well as wild fox grapes that remain on the vines during the winter. We found that they were feeding upon the vegetation around spring holes of which there are always two or three on every farm, in fact they seem to show a great sense of self preservation—not any were seen sitting around as if they were cold but all were busy seeking food of various kinds.

"March 7th one of the employes in the game farm reported seeing a flock containing approximately 100 pheasants—he was dispatched with a bag of corn on the cob to feed them. This large number of birds seen together can be counted for by the fact that the location is at the end of two valleys and the birds have worked down toward the river with its outlying streams where vegetation that these living streams afford is obtainable."

The Radio Column

SHIELDING R. F. TRANSFORMERS.

Eliminates Interstage Coupling and Increases Selectivity.

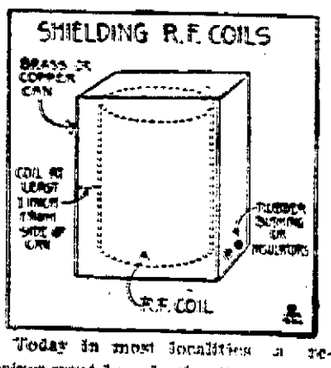
F. M. RUSSELL.



Today in most localities a receiver must be selective if you are to get any satisfactory tone quality, and distance. This applies especially to the R. F. receivers using two or three stages of tuned radio frequency. Stages of tuned radio frequency ensures the selectivity and sensitivity of the receiver but unless the coils are properly placed, coupling between the various stages and wiring will result and produce unstable operation.

There are various methods used to prevent coupling such as the placing of the coils at various angles and some distance apart. This means long leads which in effect only eliminate one defect to introduce another. In other words you remedy one condition but do so at the expense of efficiency by making it use longer leads.

Lately various shapes and size of coils have been appearing, which by their peculiar construction prevent interstage coupling but at a slight loss in efficiency. The fields of the coils are neutralized by this form of winding but reduce the amplification qualities.

So far shielding the coil in a metal case has proven the most efficient means of preventing interstage coupling. This must be carefully done otherwise losses will occur. The coil should not be closer than 1 inch from the side of the shield otherwise the efficiency will be lowered to a great extent. The shield not only eliminates coupling but will also permit the R. F. units to be placed closer together which will shorten leads and of course increase efficiency.

Are you paying for a Packard —without owning one?

Very likely you are paying the Packard price for motor car transportation while believing you cannot afford a Packard. Thousands do.

Yet while they long for Packard Six comfort, beauty and distinction others own and drive these fine cars at an actual saving in money over the cost of compromise transportation.

You too can own a Packard Six. Before you buy your next motor car, use a pencil and a scratch pad before you use a pen and a check book.

Most of the items of cost in owning a car are the same as between a Packard Six and any car at even half its price.

It costs little more to insure the Packard than the half-price car. No more to garage it—no more to license it—no more for a wash and polish! Interest on your Packard investment will be a few cents a day higher—but less frequent and lower repair charges under Packard's flat rate service plan far offset that item.

Packard Six owners report 14 to 16 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 1,000 miles or more to a gallon of motor oil, 15,000 to 20,000 miles per set of tires. What half-price car does better?

But those items, so strongly stressed by most manufacturers, are relatively unimportant. Depreciation is the really important charge. Depreciation costs many motorists 2 or 3 times as much per mile as they pay for gas, oil and rubber together.

The used car most often turned in last year by Packard Six buyers had been driven an average of only 15,087 miles!

Depreciation cost every one of those owners eight cents a mile! They, none of them, spent a total of over three cents a mile for gasoline, oil and tires.

If you are one of the thousands who buy a half-price car every year or two—every 15,000 to 20,000 miles—you can own and drive a Packard Six for less money.

More than twice as many Packard Six cars were sold last year as in 1924. And 70% of all these sales were made to those who had been buying lower-priced cars frequently.

These Packard Six owners know they can keep their new cars two or three times as long as the cars they turned in—and they intend to do it. On such a basis they drive the car they have always wanted at a lower-per-mile cost than they have ever paid.

It is a fact that 98% of those who have bought Packard Six cars during the past five years are still Packard owners. They are not paying a heavy depreciation toll every year. You need not do so either.

The Packard Six five-passenger sedan with all necessary accessories including spare tire and with freight and tax paid, is delivered at your door for $_____ Thousands have bought Packard Six cars without ever paying out more than $200 in cash at any one time, used car allowance considered; the payments seldom exceeding $150 a month.

Packard cars are now being sold on the basis of the new tax rate

Bermuda, Where Minority Rules

Kingston Visitor to "The Vexed Bermoothes" Describes Results of Minority Rule and Special Privilege as Viewed by an Observant Tourist.

Editor Daily Freeman:

Your recently printed editorial entitled Majority Rule, was excellent, and justifies your conclusion that "there is no practical substitute in sight" for such rule. I have just returned from a month's sojourn in Bermuda, where, in truth, the government is—to quote again—"in the hands of a few exalted highbrows. There, "the results are," in some respects at least, "worse than the results of Europe's government by kings."

The population of the Bermuda Islands (there are said to be 365 of them, large and small) is about 21,000; of this number, 14,000 are of negro or West Indian descent, always spoken of as the "colored people"—a superior type, peaceable, industrious and well-informed; the minority are whites, descended from early navigators, noble English families, tradesmen, artizans and farmers from the British Isles. Early in the 17th century, James I granted the colonists a general assembly of their own, with almost unlimited powers to make their own laws, provided only that these "should not be contrary to the Laws of the Realm of England." Under this very liberal charter, the islands are now governed, with, many observers believe, the worst possible results.

The personnel of the government consists of a governor general, an executive council of seven members, and a legislative council of nine members, all appointed by the Crown; and the legislative assembly, composed of 36 members, four from each of the nine "parishes" into which the islands are divided. There are no political parties. The members of assembly are the "highbrows" of the parishes they represent—the big merchants, professional men and the bankers. Most of them hold several offices at one time—a sort of interlocking directorate that controls the destinies of every man, woman and child on the islands. Usually elected on personal grounds, they get themselves returned to the assembly as often as they please, for the franchise is confined, by property qualifications, to about 1,000 whites and 500 colored voters, many of them dependent on their representative, or a government job, for their bread and butter.

It is a manifest fact that the government of Bermuda is not, in any true sense "of the people" or "by the people;" nor is it "for the people"—a fact confirmed by both observation and testimony. An old and trusted government employe openly stated to me that the assembly was "made up of a lot of little rings and cliques, so you never can tell what you'll run up against," adding that about half a dozen members had their own way in everything, in the end. But how about the "results?" How do the plain people fare? Are living conditions tolerable for them?

The answer to these questions is this: Meat costs at retail 48 cents to 72 cents a pound; fish—in spite of "the 168 varieties" in which the waters of Bermuda are said to abound—is 24 cents to 48 cents a pound, and often scarce; eggs, 96 cents to $1.20 a dozen; groceries, invariably 50 per cent to 100 per cent higher than in the U. S.; hradware, household furniture and fancy goods, the same. For those who smoke, an America 15 cent can of tobacco costs one-third, or 30 cents; and cigars are correspondingly dear; oranges—from California or Florida, few are grown in Bermuda—cost 8 cents to 10 cents each, a poorer grade from the West Indies, 4 cents to 6 cents each; grapefruit, equally expensive; and bananas, the principal fruit produced on the islands, 10 cents a pound; with the exception of woolens, imported from England, there is nothing in Bermuda that is cheap, and few necessaries of life that are even reasonable in price. The fuel in general use for cooking, is kerosene; but it costs the poor 12 cents a quart, or 36 cents to 48 cents a gallon; the fisherman, too, pays 50 cents a gallon for gasoline to run his motor. To make matters still worse, rents are high and wages are low—averaging about one-half the American wage in all occupations. Much more might be said along these lines; but it is not too much to say, that if the assembly and the legislative council of the colony were composed of broadminded men, endued with real patriotism and a humanitarian spirit, living conditions in Bermuda, with its industrious and law-abiding people, its mild climate and productive soil, would be as reasonable as in our own land; for, on the taxable imports, there is a duty of only 11 per cent flat, with special rates on certain luxuries. As usual, the top prices are paid by the poor, the rich being able and in the habit of purchasing their own supplies abroad at American or English export prices.

A common excuse offered by merchants for the exorbitant retail prices demanded is "The high freight rates" from America; but Bermuda is no farther from New York than Jacksonville Fla., whose most commodities are as cheap as in northern cities; the real abuses are monopoly, and the private interests of the well-to-do—all of which could and probably would be abolished if the majority ruled.

If the majority ruled in Bermuda, it is likely, too, that the public (legal) flogging of young children would be abolished, as cruel, and incompatible with the enlightened methods of civilized countries. This matter was discussed in the assembly for two or thre days last month; a local member from the city of Hamilton brought forward the case of a lad, 13 years of age, guilty of some juvenile misbehavior, often arrested and eleven times flogged by a gooler or other court official by the magistrate's orders, and three days confined in a "solitary cell" on bread and water! This member stated the facts which his investigation had brought out, but they were these: The lad's father had been killed at a pier during the unloading of a vessel; his mother was a cripple, both feet being amputated, and was struggling to support eight children while in that condition; the member in question, to his everlasting honor, asked for the rescinding of that law; he stated that a committee of Christian men and women had offered to take the lad under their care; the attorney general opposed the member's motion, portraying Bermuda deluged with crime if it was adopted; that settled it; some 28 members voted against it; only six for it! That is not "majority rule;" no matter what it may be called, it was the rule of an oppressive minority of the free citizens of Bermuda! The proceedings were published in full in the local newspapers, and the facts are not contested.

It may be of interest to your readers if I mention some other facts regarding the islands themselves, notwithstanding the undesirable form of government under which they exist.

The islands are named from the Spanish sea rover, Juan de Bermudez, who discovered them in the year 1515, and have strongly appealed to the imagination of travelers—alike to those who travel for pleasure and those who travel in the pursuit of health. It would be difficult to exaggerate the scenic beauty of the Bermudas; cedar-clad hills, whose dark and restful green is broken by the gleaming white walls and roofs of the houses, which are universally constructed of soft coral rock quarried on the spot, and shaped into blocks with common handsaws, and last, but not least, the indescribably bright, yet milky blueness of the water immediately surrounding the islands. Hamilton, the capital and tourist center of Bermuda, is located on the north shore of the Great Sound, a large island basin terminating in a small but beautiful deep-water harbor, equipped with modern docks for ships up to 20,000 tons. The ancient capital, St. George's, at the extreme eastern end of the islands, has so declined in population and commercial importance as to be now mainly a point of visitation by tourists from the more modern and aggressive city of Hamilton; but during the World War, St. George's, like the Government Dockyard at the extreme western end of the islands, was the scene of great naval activity.

As to the climate and the means of transportation. The former, while tempered by the gulf stream, is exceedingly damp at seasons of the year—a fact admitted not, of course, by the guide books or steamship folders, but by the average inhabitant on persistent inquiry. The older structures are generally damp, owing to the porous character of the coral rock of which they are built; later structures are protected by foundations laid in cement. There is much rain in winter, and excessive humidity in the summer; the rain is welcomed, as it affords the only supply of drinking water on the islands; the humidity is tempered by the high winds that prevail at nearly all seasons. The climate suits the natives, but they are generally well equipped with rain coats and umbrellas, for which they have abundant use. Health seekers should keep this in mind The only means of trasportation in Bermuda are "shank's mare," horses and carriages and bicycles. The carriage rinse tariff averages 5 shillings ($1.20) per mile; bicycles rent for 2 shillings an hour (48 cents), or about $1.50 a day; no automobiles are permitted on the islands—the uncrowned kings of transportation, the liverymen, don't want them; of street cars and railroads, also, there are none. The rich can get along without them; the poor must.

The roads are good, when dry; when wet, they are extremely slippery, even when rubbers are worn, as the surface turns to the consistency of soft soap. The principal hotels are good, but expensive—$5 to $15 upward per day; rooms and meals in private houses are correspondingly high. As compared with the provision made in American winter resorts for the comfort and entertainment of tourists in general, little is done except in and by the few great hotels. When the weather permits, a military band plays three mornings a week in the tiny Park de Ville, and one afternoon in the somewhat larger Victoria Park. I learned of no other public entertainment, no visitors' clubs, national headquarters, public golf links, bowling greens, croquet grounds, tennis courts, public rest benches or information bureaus, such as are commonly and freely provided in California and Florida resorts.

And finally, while it is easy enough to get to Bermuda, at anywhere from $55 to $300, including government tax and stewards' fees, for the round trip, tourists from the United States should beforehand engage the return passage for a definite date, as the experience of numerous travelers has proved their "accommodations" are likely to be "already reserved" by other parties at advance rates, which they, too, will have to pay if they wish to take a certain summer home, or be thrust into "second cabin" at first-cabin rates, the said cabins being termed "emergency first-cabins for this trip!" No refunds are offered the unlucky travelers who may, once on board ship, learn of first-class staterooms still unsold and empty, or only partially filled. An alert and patriotic government in Bermuda could do much to correct this abuse—one which affects hundreds of indignant and disgusted travelers whose only offense is that they do not, and often cannot, know in advance the date of their return to their own dear land, or lands, where, in fact as well as in theory, the majority rules!

Why Some People Catch Cold Quickly

INTERESTING NEW FACTS

Some people can go through a whole winter without catching cold. Others suffer from one cold after another. Why is it? Simply because some people can't resist germs—cannot fight them off. Sterilize the blood with RI-AN Tablets and you'll be surprised how you can keep free from cold attacks. And you need not worry about getting the "flu," for RI-AN Tablets are a powerful tonic which helps to build up the system against all germ diseases. Ask your druggist for RI-AN Tablets.

Luncher (to a man who is making off with his overcoats): I beg your pardon, sir, but in case we don't meet again, may I have a couple of cigars out of the pocket?

Old Shop-Windows Gone

Paris shopkeepers still talk of "putting up the shutters" at closing time, but actually they pull them down. The quaint, many-paned shop windows so familiar in the old illustrations to the "Songs" of Beranger and the Croix Chank and Phiz drawings for Dickens' works, have disappeared to make way for great, solid iron "curtains," which are hauled down with a lever. The old windows, charming, cob-webbed and smelly, remain in a few out-of-the-way parts of Paris.

Trees and Slums

One sign, and a bad one, of our advancing civilization is that we cut down trees. We root and cut, and then—a better sign—we begin to think of planting them again. From town to slums and from slums back to trees; such is the history, and only that we have stopped and were slower and unskilful in getting rid of the trees—and we are still doing it—does one see in the neighborhood of our towns.—Manchester Guardian.

Conservation Week Proclaimed

Governor Smith Designates First Week in April as Conservation Week—Schools Will Participate.

Albany, March 15.—Governor Smith today issued a proclamation designating the first week in April as Conservation Week to be devoted to teaching the importance of the conservation of the state's natural resources forests, waters, fish and game

Ten days after Conservation Week, President Coolidge has fixed the week of April 18-24 as American Forest Week and April 29 and 30, and May 7 has been named as Arbor Day in southern, central and the northern and mountain counties of the state by Dr Frank P. Graves State Commissioner of Education, in a proclamation that lays particular stress upon the planting of school forests throughout the several districts so that throughout the greater part of April public attention will be focussed upon the importance of conservation

Governor Smith's proclamation follows.

"In recent years the attention of the people has been drawn to the imperative need of conserving our natural resources,—our forests, waters and the wild life supported by them,—which three centuries of unrestrained use have seriously impaired Of a superabundance of forests there remains only a medium, and with the passing of the forests have passed in great measure the birds and beasts that lived in them and the fish from the waters fed by streams from our forest-clothed mountains If we are to achieve the greatest possible beneficial use of the resources with which nature has so bountifully blessed us, waste, destruction and commercial exploitation must be checked Our forests must be protected and maintained for the health and economic welfare of the people ,our waters must be conserved for power and drinking purposes, and the wild life of forest and stream must be protected and the supply increased to meet the growing demands of a greater population for food and healthful sport.

"Now, therefore, I, Alfred E. Smith, governor of the state of New York, do hereby proclaim the week beginning Thursday, April 1 1926, as to be devoted to the teaching of the benefits that will follow the conservation of our natural resources, and I call upon all public officials, the clergy, educational agencies including societies and associations to bring to the attention of the people the importance of protecting and replacing our forests as great natural parks for health and recreation and the source of a future supply of lumber and wood increasing the wild life of forest field and stream, and protecting our waters from pollution waste and alienation"

Give, under my hand and the privy seal of the state at the capitol in the city of Albany this fifteenth day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six

ALFRED E. SMITH.

By the Governor:
George B. Graves,
Secretary to the Governor.

That phase of conservation that has to do with the replacement of the forests is interesting more people every year and orders for young trees for reforesting purposes already received by the conservation commission indicate that this spring's planting, will exceed 15,000,000 trees or nearly double last year's record.

A recent order from F. E. Hambeck, a lumberman of Forest City, Pa who is reforesting a large tract of land in Otsego county is for 150,000 Norway spruce seedlings to be planted this spring. Similar plantings will be made each year until the entire tract is planted.

The Chemung Rod and Gun Club has placed an order for 100,000 trees to reforest a tract of land that the club has purchased near Horseheads.

The Castleton Fish and Game Association has secured permission to plant a tract of about 15 acres on the headwaters of the Vlockie Kill the village water supply

Principal F B. Snavely, of the Spencerport High School, is planning to reforest two and a half acres of its new site of twelve acres, the trees to be planted by the pupils on Arbor Day. As this is public land, the trees will be furnished free from one of the conservation commission's nurseries

Principal Randall B Silliman, of the Cold Brook Public School, which has been planting 2,00 trees a year for the past three years in a school forest, will continue the planting this spring.

PROTECTION FOR TROUT.

To Improve Angling Conditions In Cranberry Lake.

Albany, March 15.—Conservation Commissioner Alexander Macdonald has closed the waters of Brandy Brook, East Creek, Chair Rock Creek Sucker Brook and South Creek, feeders of Cranberry Lake, St Lawrence county, to trout fishing until further notice.

A petition was received from residents of Cranberry Lake requesting that a close season be imposed for the taking of trout in these waters as there was danger of brook trout being exterminated from over-fishing The streams are small and are natural propagating waters for the young trout which, when they grow up, go into Cranberry Lake A public hearing was held at Cranberry Lake on March 2nd at which about fifty persons appeared in favor of the petition to prohibit the taking of brook trout in these streams, and no one appeared in opposition It was brought out at the hearing that great numbers of undersized trout are killed every year by anglers who catch them and throw them back when they are below the legal size

Upon the evidence presented at the hearing, Llewellyn Legge, chief game protector, recommended that the additional protection to brook trout in these waters asked for by the petitioners be granted and the recommendation was approved, effective April 7th As these streams are natural feeders for Cranberry Lake, the closing of them to anglers undoubtedly will have a marked effect in improving the trout fishing in that lake.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

OWE ALPHABETS TO SIGN SYSTEMS

Phenicians Formed Characters From Symbols First Used in Egypt.

New York.—Those who have become surfeited with the cross-word puzzle but are still in the grip of the word juggling complex need not despair of new fields to conquer. There is still open to them the illimitable possibilities contained in transposing the letters of the alphabet.

According to Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, managing editor of Funk & Wagnalls' New Standard Dictionary, it is humanly impossible to assemble all the combinations which the letters of the alphabet are capable of forming.

"Those 26 letters," he says, "can be transposed 620,448,401,733,239,439,360,000 times.

"If the entire population of the world were to be put to the task, it could not write all the possible transpositions of these 26 letters in 1,000,000,000 years, even though they wrote 40 pages a day, each page containing 40 different transpositions."

With the alphabetical nativity of some 250,000 words indexed in the catalogue of his mind, Doctor Vizetelly is an authority on alphabets past and present and as a lexicographer he digs most assiduously into languages in search of their roots.

"Ignorance concerning the alphabet we use is surprisingly common," he remarked recently. "Seldom a day goes by but what I receive a score of inquiries concerning some branch of alphabetical lore. One of the beliefs still generally accepted, for example, is that we owe our alphabet to the Phenicians.

Phenician Legend Shattered.

"Greek mythology credits the invention of the alphabet to Cadmus, the Phenician, but neither he nor any other Phenician invented the alphabet for it is not a thing that would have occurred spontaneously in its entirety to the mind of any man, no matter how great a creative genius man may be.

"No one likes to be termed an iconoclast, but it is certain that Emmanuel de Rouge was one when, in 1859, he shattered the legend that our alphabet was invented by the Phenicians and proved that the Phenicians derived their characters from the Egyptian hieratic symbols as shown by the papyrus Prisse, which was in all probability written before 2000 B. C. The discovery in 1887-88 of the cuneiform tablets of Asiatic correspondence, written by Amenophis IV, in Syria about 1375, showed that thousands of years ago the Phenicians and other Semitic people used Babylonian as the language of international communication.

"The Egyptian hieratic characters are at least 2,000 years older than any of the Phenician inscriptions of which we have any knowledge. Professor Flinders Petrie put forward the theory that a sign system was the original means of international communication on the Mediterranean littoral from early times, and that from this sign system our alphabet was selected and grouped by the Phenicians.

"Other scholars have sought the source of the alphabet in the Island of Crete and some of them hold that the Bretan inscriptions are identical with Egyptian hieroglyphs and that the Minoan pictographs contain prototypes of the Phenician letters.

"Our journey toward the letters was a painfully slow one, for we used a syllabary of hieroglyphs to express our ideas, and by degrees progressed to runes, and these runes we termed futhore, the name being derived from the first six letters—feoh ur (or) thorn, os (es), rad (rahd), the runic alphabet. The runes are said to have been taken from the Greek alphabet, like those of Thrace in the Sixth century B. C. The earliest extant specimens are of the Second and Third century. They passed out of use with the spread of the Roman alphabet from the Eleventh to the Fifteenth century. The original meaning of the word rune is 'secret,' and it was used to signify a mysterious song, doctrine, speech, or writing. There were several runic alphabets—the Gothic, the Anglian, and the Scandinavian.

"From the clearest and from the simplest of these early alphabets, we have derived all the modern systems of writing, and after the Roman alphabet displaced the runes, it superseded the Greek, the square letter of the Hebrew, the decorative Sanskrit, the beautiful Neski of the Arabic-speaking world, and may be said to prevail everywhere. It is only within recent years, in fact, since the establishment of Angora as the Turkish capital, that Roman letters have by decree superseded the Neski alphabet in Turkey.

Antiquity of Cuneiform System.

"The stele of Mesha, king of Moab, which was found at Dhiban in 1868, and is more popularly known as the Moabite Stone, belonged to the Ninth century B. C. This contains one of the earliest inscriptions in the Phenician alphabet, and its language, the New Standard Dictionary tells us, differs only dialectically from the Hebrew. By studying the fragments of this stone, Clermont Ganneau was able to publish the text, and the first translation; and the decipherment of the entire stone, which is now complete, was the result of researches by French, German and English scholars.

"Yet another, the code of edicts of Hammurabi, king of Babylonia from 2285 B. C. to 2185, which was discovered in 1902 is in cuneiform characters. The cuneiforms are said to have been invented by the primitive Accadians of Mesopotamia about 4,000 years ago, and were impressed or engraved by the ancient Babylonians, Assyrians, and others on bronze, glass, iron, stone, clay and other substances. The most important of these signaries or alphabets are (1) the Accadian, which is the oldest, its characters being ideographic; (2) the Assyro-Babylonian, the largest and most complicated, which has 700 characters, partly alphabetic, partly syllabic, and written from left to right; (3) the New Susian; (4) the old Persian, which had about sixty phonetic characters and which, when deciphered by Grotefend in 1802, provided a clew to other cuneiform systems, and (5) the Armenian. The shape of the characters was governed by the tool or stylus used to produce them.

"The Greeks adopted the Phenician alphabet before they embarked on their great colonizing movement a thousand years before Christ. At first they wrote from right to left after the Phenician plan; then alternately from right to left and left to right. In this fashion the laws of Solon were written, but the plan was abandoned in the Fifth century and the left to right method adopted by Occidental nations. The alphabet was brought to Italy by the Dorian Greeks of Cumae and Sicily and there it was subjected to further modification. The Latin alphabet retained the Phenician Kaph and Koph (k and q) and dropped theta, phi, and chi (kai) because the Romans did not require aspirate sounds and later they dropped seta which was replaced by g, a modification of c which they used for both k and g sounds, and so continued with 21 letters until the Latin alphabet, spread through Roman conquests, necessitated an increase of five letters, bringing the total up to 26. These included the development of i into j, of u into w, v, and y, and the addition of z.

"The one European language that did not get its alphabet in this manner is the Russian, whose characters like that of its people are derived from the Byzantine Greek of the Ninth century. To this Cyril added others to cover Slavonic sounds and thus increased the number to 35 letters.

Vary in Number of Letters.

"The alphabets of different nations vary in the numbers of letters they contain. For instance, there are 28 letters in the Arabic alphabet, and 38 in the Armenian, 32 in the Coptic, 26 in the Dutch, 26 in the English, 25 in the French, 39 in the Georgian, 26 in the German, 24 in the Greek, 22 in the Hebrew, 21 in the Italian, 23 in the Latin, 45 in the Persian (Parsee or Zend), 35 in the Russian, 49 in the Sanskrit, 40 in Slavonic, 27 in the Spanish, including the digraphs ch, ll, rr; 22 in Syriac. The Japanese syllabary or list of characters representing syllables or syllabic sounds, consists of 72 of these sounds which are indicated by 48 characters. The Chinese are much more progressive and resorted to phraseograms of which they have about 20,000, but no alphabet.

"In the Book of Ezra, Chapter 7, verse 21, you have a Biblical verse in which there are all the letters of the alphabet except j, but the letter j is merely a modification of i and both were considered one and the same letter in medieval writing. In English the graphic separation of i and j dates back to only the Seventeenth century, but long after that the two letters were considered identical and treated accordingly in the alphabetization of words in the dictionary. Even as late as a century ago, words in i and j were alphabetized among one another by Todd in his edition of Johnson's Dictionary.

"A lover of words once made up his mind to test the recurrence of the various letters of the alphabet in a set number of citations taken from fugitive pieces, and containing in all 1,089 letters, with the following results: A occurred 85 times; B, 16; C, 30; D, 44; E, 120; F, 25; G, 17; H, 64; I, 80; J, 4; K, 8; L, 40; M, 30; N, 80; O, 80; P, 17; Q, 5; R, 62; S, 80; T, 90; U, 34; V, 12; W, 20; X, 4; Y, 20, and Z, 2. This showed that the letter e occurred most frequently and, therefore, is almost an indispensable letter, but it is not altogether indispensable, as the following lines, which do not contain the letter e, will show:

A jovial swain should not complain
  Of any buxom fair,
Who mocks his pain and thinks it gain
To quiz his awkward air.
Quixotic boys who look for joys
Quixotic hazards run;
A lass annoys with trivial toys,
  Opposing man for fun.

"That you can do without a this verse will serve to show:

Tonight, tonight, my gentle one,
  The flower-bearing Amra tree
Doth long with fragrant moan to meet
  The love-lip of the honey-bee.
But not the Amra tree can long
  To greet the bee at evening light,
With half the deep fond love I long
  To meet my Norma here tonight.

Austrian Palace Turned Into School for Workers

Vienna.—The graceful country villa at Hellgenstadt, the summer home of the late Empress Maria Theresa of Austria, has been turned into a workingmen's school by the Social Democratic party. Here in one of the most exquisite palaces of the Rococo style in which the mighty mother of Marie Antoinette was wont to seek relaxation from her cares of state, workingmen and women are initiated into the mysteries of political scientific learning under the guidance of Social Democratic teachers.

An Intelligent Interest

The rector of a country parish was showing one of his parishioners round his garden. He paused in front of the garden wall, into which had been built a huge bowlder of granite, differing obviously from the red sandstone blocks that composed the rest of the wall. "That," he said, indicating the granite bowlder, "came down in a glacier." The visitor considered the object with much attention and then said thoughtfully: "Would that be before the war?"—Manchester Guardian

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 15.—The upturn in stock prices encountered further opposition today in the form of week-end selling from outside points and persistent speculative selling by the bearish professionals. Motor stocks responded feebly to a favorable survey of the industry by the president of General Motors Corporations and favored oil stocks reached slightly higher ground.

Bearish trades found it impossible to cause any depression below the opening range of prices which in some cases showed a shrinkage of three points from Saturday's close. The bulls marked up prices of the specialties like allied chemical.

A sharp decline of nearly 50 points in Belgian franc exchange followed the withdrawal of Belgian Government support from the exchange market, and brought the franc down to 4.03 cents.

French francs were quoted about three points lower and other European currencies were irregular as the result of the tense feeling stirred up at Geneva. Wheat and corn sold off one to three cents a bushel in Chicago and Winnipeg and cotton was quoted about 20 points lower.

Reports from the oil industry were much more favorable than the market action of the standard and independent oil shares. Good buying appeared in General Petroleum, Marland and the California Oils.

Steel stocks were strong.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Rachel Decker died this morning at 246 Washington avenue. She is survived by a niece, R. Gertrude Decker and a nephew, Dwight C. Decker. Funeral private from the late residence Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Mountain View Cemetery, Saugerties, N. Y.

Mrs. Julia Johnson, wife of the late Moses Van Vliet, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Chauncey L. Smith, 69 Henry street, early this morning. She was a member of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church. She is survived by one sister, and one grandson. Funeral from the home of her sister on Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment in Montrepose Cemetery.

Miss Florence Annett Quigley, daughter of Patrick Quigley and the late Anna McGeeney, died today at the family home, No. 609 Abeel street. Miss Quigley was a very popular young girl and had a wide circle of friends who will be deeply shocked to learn of her death. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. Besides her father she is survived by two brothers, George and James, and four sisters, Mollie, Estelle, Adele and Helen Quigley.

This morning at an early hour, Johanna Regan, wife of the late Patrick J. Geary, died at the family home, 217 East Union street, after a few days illness. Mrs. Geary was beloved by a host of friends who will be shocked to learn of her sudden death. She is survived by three daughters and two sons, Mary, Mrs. J. L. Kain, Mrs. John Garavan, Dennis J., and William J. Geary. Funeral from the late home, 217 East Union street, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock thence to St. Mary's Church where at 9:30 a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Charles O. Belton died Saturday in New York city after a long illness. The remains were brought to this city this afternoon and interred in Montrepose Cemetery. For many years Mr. Belton had charge of the veterinary stables of Dr. John A. Huhne on West Union street, and made his home at the stables. He was a man of very genial nature and always took an active interest in the animals entrusted to his care. During the years that he was employed by Dr. Huhne Mr. Belton became widely known, especially in the downtown section of the city. He is survived by two married daughters, with one of whom he had made his home in New York of late years.

The funeral of Mildred Baglivi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Baglivi was held from her late home, 112 First avenue this morning at 9:45 and at St. Mary's Church at 10:15 where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. Thomas Daley. The Rev. Joseph Ostermann was seated within the sanctuary during the Mass. The floral offerings from sorrowing relatives and friends were profuse and beautiful. As the body was borne from the church by members of the family who acted as casket bearers St. Mary's choir sang Jesus, Jesus Come to Me. The remains were taken to Brooklyn, N. Y., where interment will be made in the family plot in Holy Cross cemetery.

Raymond J. Boss, a popular and highly respected young man, died Sunday evening following a long illness. He was the son of Mrs. Fanny Gage Boss and the late Ernest V. Boss and had resided in this city all his life, where he had endeared himself to a very large circle of friends. Besides his mother he leaves one sister, Mrs. Barbara Sanford, also three brothers, George, Ernest and Francis Boss, all of this city. He was a member of the American Legion Post No. 150 of this city, also of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, besides being a Fourth Degree member of the Knights of Columbus. The funeral will be held from his late home, 21 Staples street, on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church at 9:30, where a solemn requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

ANCHORED BY INVISIBLE HANDS

By W. A. FRASER

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

IT WAS two o'clock when Le Bretagne spread her white sails and crept out toward the eastern sky. It was six when the gray wall of the sea rose and blotted out the ship as though she had gone to the bottom.

Then the dark figure which had been outlined against the crimson of the big, red setting sun turned wearily and crept over the sands towards Arichat—it was Marie, returning to her newly widowed home.

"Leon said he would come, so why should I fear?" she kept muttering, "and Leon will keep his word in life or death. 'Even if I'm dead, Marie,' he said, joking me, 'I will come to thee.'"

On the farther side of L'Isle Madam the sea was moaning as Marie reached her cottage.

One month had gone—one month of the loveliest weather—ideal weather for the fishing, the old wives said, only they used a stronger word than "ideal" to express their satisfaction.

It was just thirty-four days since the gray wall of water had risen between Marie and her Leon. There was no mistaking the day, for she had just drawn a line through the date. Not for a moment had Marie slumbered that night. The sea had gone to rest with a sigh, a sigh of utter weariness, as though the wind had called it to battle to the death.

The calm that rested over everything was awful; it was as though all life had gone out of the world. Toward noon the glassy water grew dark, where little puffs of wind ruffled its surface.

These light winds came from the west; but away down in the southeast, queer, torn-looking clouds were rising above the dead horizon line. The sea seemed heaped up there as though a great pressure behind were driving the whole ocean landward.

The clouds seemed to hang as though there was no wind moving them. Old sailors shaded their eyes with their hands, and looked off to the south and east, seaward, and shook their heads; there was a restless feeling over everything.

By night the clouds had risen like a wall, stretching from the south to the northeast, but still it was clear overhead; no clouds, only a murky, yellow haze.

Fitful blasts of wind came tearing through the quaint old fishing town of Arichat, making signs and shutters tremble and creak for an instant, and then silence—that dreadful silence that seemed to still the very beating of one's heart.

That night Marie prayed as though she were pleading for her soul: "Oh, Holy Mother, plead for me, even as though hadst a Son," and then the hot flood of tears fell fast, blinding and scorching, and choking the full heart. Words were vain; long she knelt beside her humble cot, and over and over pleaded in the same words, "Save my Leon." The promise of low masses to be said were made, with scarcely a knowledge of what she was uttering, the cry, "Save my Leon," driving all else before it.

And outside, as she knelt, the wind moaned at the casement, and the gusts were coming faster and stronger now. The moon, which had looked down like a baleful ball of fire through the murky yellow of the upper sky, had been swallowed up in a vault black as ink.

With a great sob Marie rose, and looked from her door across the waste of heaving waters. 'Twas just across there that Leon had gone, his jaunty craft careening gracefully as the fresh breeze sped her on her way; tonight only the fitful gleam of a phosphorescent-capped wave was seen as it rose above its fellows for a moment, and then was lost in that awful gloom.

"Why should I fear?" Marie was trying to persuade herself; "Leon must be far away now, out of reach of this coming storm"—and then a sob would choke her, and only "Holy Mother, plead for me and my Leon," would give her peace.

In the morning the eastern shore of L'Isle Madam was shrouded in seething spray. The breakers were thundering at her guarding rocks. By night the world was spray covered—the world of L'Isle Madam. The sky and the earth and the sea were one. And still from the southeast the storm drove, and all that night.

And in the morning of the second day the crash of breaking timbers mingled with the boom of the mighty waves as they dashed against the granite walls.

People were hurrying towards the surf-beaten shore. Her long hair tossing in the maddened breeze, Marie rushed after them; in her heart the cry that had been there for so many hours, "Holy Mother, save my Leon."

"Yes, yes; it's Le Bretagne," an old man was saying, slowly lowering his glass as Marie came up to the group of people who were straining their eyes seaward. "Her anchors are out," he continued, "but she cannot live in such a gale under that strain, and if she parts her cable she will go to pieces on the rocks."

His words were scarcely audible above the shrieking of the wind; but Marie heard, and there, among those rough fishermen, she knelt and prayed, over and over again, out of the choking fulness of her heart, "Holy Mother, save my Leon." The awful solemnity of the scene touched their rough hearts, and hats were doffed, and heads bowed, as the young wife prayed to her God in that living gale.

And then, as if in mockery of all things human, a mighty wave, mightier than any of its fellows, and following in the wake of two scarcely less mighty, broke over the Bretagne, and buried her beneath its many tons of foam-lashed water. The vessel swayed, trembled, and disappeared before their very eyes.

Two men were holding Marie now. "I will go to him! He is calling me!" she shrieked. "Oh, God! will no one save him?"

The bronzed faces of the fisherfolk were turned away each from the other. The salt spray was on their beards, but in their eyes was that of which they were ashamed.

Then they led her back to the house, the little house that Leon had taken her to only a few weeks ago. And two of them watched into the gray of the morning, for 'neath oil skins the fishers' hearts are warm.

That was the third night, and still she slept not. The storm was dying now, and moaning, together they passed away—the fury of grief and the rage of the storm. And for that day, and for many days the great grief had broken her mind.

Storm and sunshine, day in and day out, she sat down on the beach, and questioned the passers as to how many days till her Leon would come home; for had he not said that he would come, and was not his word as the law among the fisher-folk, it was so true? And did she not pray every night to the Holy Mother to intercede for her, and bring her Leon home? And the masses that had been said for Leon, were they not to bring him home, too?

Poor little Marie, her mind, which was like unto a child's, could not understand that the mass which Father Dupre had said, had been to take him to that other home; for the good Father had said mass for the repose of the souls of the men lying out there in Le Bretagne.

And then a wonderful thing happened. Many days after, again the cry of Le Bretagne rang through the streets of Arichat; and again was there much of horror in the cry, for though the sea was calm now, there was Le Bretagne slowly sailing into port; and was not Le Bretagne at the bottom of the sea, and all hands drowned?

Small wonder that the browned faces were blanched now, as the fisher-folk lined up on the sand, as they had on that day two moons before.

"What sorcery is this?" they asked each other. It was Le Bretagne; they knew her as they knew their own houses. Spirit hands were sailing her; on her decks no one moved.

A solemn hush settled down upon them; few spoke, and when they did it was with bated breath. What evil was this? for good it could not be.

'Twas Marie who had first seen the ship. Had her prayers worked this magic?

Nearer and nearer the dread ship came, until but a short way out from the shore she stopped, and swung to an anchor. Invisible hands had anchored her, for there was the cable right enough, running out from her bow, as she lifted lazily to the long ground swell.

"Take me to my Leon," Marie pleaded of the awe-struck fishermen, "he is calling me. Do you not see that his boats are washed away?"

Shamed by the presence of the women, four stout fishermen brought up a boat, and, taking Marie with them, rowed off to the ship that was like a phantom.

"Stay with us, ma petite amie," the fisherwomen pleaded with Marie. As well had they striven to check the ways of the wind.

How silent the ship was as the boat glided under her stern! Not a sound, not a voice; no movement, only the lap, lap, lap of the waters against her wooden sides.

The men crossed themselves as Dumont, the bravest fisherman in all Arichat, rose up, and, with blanched cheeks, caught his boat hook in Le Bretagne's rail.

How low she was in the water; as they stood up in their boat they could see across her deck—not across did they see, for half way they saw something—something which caused them to shudder, and beg of little Marie to stop in the boat.

But Marie had risen and seen, too, and with a cry that rang in the ears of those four men until their dying day, she sprang up the side of the ship, and stood on the slippery, slimy deck.

Her Leon was there, lashed to the mast. She threw herself upon his poor bloated form.

The four understood. Dumont looked down an open hatch: "Her salt is gone!" he exclaimed.

That brief sentence explained it all. She had gone to the fisheries loaded with salt. When the water had washed all the salt out of her hold, being a wooden ship, she had floated, dragging her one remaining anchor until it had caught in the good-holding ground near the shore.

Gently they lifted Marie away from her dead lover.

The day had come to Marie. The Holy Mother had heard her prayer, and she was with Leon.

And every year since, in Arichat, a mass is said for the repose of the soul of little Marie, and the lover who rose from the sea to come to her, even in death.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Compared to the nights that preceded it for several weeks past, last night was a paradise for the DX hounds. Stations that have been silent or heard only in whispers, were loud and clear. There was no static, no fat frying or chattering and the bloopers were taking a vacation. Omaha, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Tulnicu, Miami Beach, Montreal, Davenport, St. Louis, Detroit, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Cincinnati and even Tarrytown came in clear and loud while the assortment of Chicago stations was complete. Even KDKA came back, WOAI, at San Antonio, was one of the most enjoyable of the comebacks.

Of course WJZ, WGY and WEAF gave variety enough to satisfy anyone but a DX hound and these are always with us. But programs from nearby stations lacked the thrill for the DX hound that much poorer programs from far away give.

WDBZ delivered the church service in good volume and clarity and was distinctly heard in Kingston and surrounding country.

Kills Brother-in-Law.

Pikeville, Ky., March 15.—"I'm sorry to have done it, but there seemed no other way," declared Mrs. M. M. Coleman today from the county jail where she awaits arraignment tomorrow on a charge of murder as a result of the shooting to death of her brother-in-law, Ernest Coleman, because he gossipped about her.

New Manner in Italy

The Bank of Italy of San Francisco has just discovered that in October it was the victim of a $100,000 embezzlement plot worked by "two unfortunate boys from the old country" named Julius and Ludwig Busch. This should make a good story for some after-dinner speaker: "It seems that there were two Italians named Julius and Ludwig Busch—"—Arkansas Gazette.

Sex and Longevity

Women live longer than men owing to the fact that they lead a more sheltered life and run less risk of coming to an untimely end, said an official of the London health department. He was discussing figures which showed that of 382 deaths of people over 90 years of age, 278 were women. Of this number 190 were unmarried and 12 had reached the century mark.

GIRL GAINED 7 POUNDS
NINE YEARS AN INVALID

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babycock Girl and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at any druggists.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was five months old and was an invalid for nine years, when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, of so living almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results, why, get your money back.

Bells and Cannon

A well-made carillon bell properly hung and rightly used lasts practically forever. Only the purest copper and tin go into their construction. Until the present generation cannon were made of the same bronze as were carillon bells. Such bells in the Netherlands were not infrequently converted in time of war into cannon and returned again to their bell form when peace came.

St. Mary's Scouts Beat Newburgh

Although they were outplayed in the early part of the game St. Mary's scout team managed to draw ahead towards the end of the game and won their hardest game in two years by the score of 26 to 20, at Newburgh Saturday. The local scouts were unable to get started until well towards the close of the game.

At the start the Newburgh boys gained an eight point lead. At the end of the first quarter Rice and Jordon who were late in arriving, took their regular places in the local boys' line-up and from that point on the scouts organized their offense and lessened their opponents' lead to three points. In the second half St. Mary's scouts outplayed and outscored their opponents

The final score was in doubt until the last five minutes of the game when St. Mary's obtained a lead which they held to the end of the game.

The outstanding star of the game was Rice, the Kingston boys' center. Vernol, the Newburgh center was the mainstay of his team, scoring nine points. Butwell also palyed a good game for the losers

The game was refereed by Powers, who handled the game in fine style.

The St. Mary's scouts wish to extend their thanks to Mr. McTague for the use of his automobile and also Bun Coughlin for offering his services to drive.

in Memory of Buddha

In the Buddhist monastery of Kumbun, Tibet, there is a carpet of silk tapestry having an area of 30,000 square feet, which is embroidered with a portrait of Buddha, and pictures depicting incidents of his life. Once a year at noon on a sunshiny day, the carpet is spread on a neighboring hillside, and thousands of pilgrims assemble to view it. The object is to give Buddha a glimpse of the world he once inhabited.

S. A. Five Wins Championship

From champions of the state of New York to champions of Eastern States was the speedy advancement made by Captain Miller's Red Shield Salvation Army quintet Saturday afternoon. In the afternoon the locals easily trimmed the Newark club, champions of the state of New Jersey, while in the evening they received a close score but finally succeeded in downing the Philadelphia club, fasters of championship teams hailing from the states of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware, the score being 24-23.

In the Newark match which the Kingstonians grabbed by a 58 to 24 tally, the New Jersey outfit using man-to-man tactics, were perplexed by the locals' very effective five man defense. So overwhelmed were the Newark lads by Captain Miller's team that at half time the Kingston club had massed 38 markers while their opponents had only made three points.

But in the evening in Philadelphia it was a vastly different story for when the play in this match had terminated, but one lone marker separated these clubs, but nevertheless the Kingstonians were on the right end of the score.

At half time in this match the Philadelphia team held the lead by four points But bit by bit the locals began to creep up on their opponents and a spectacular shot by Joyce in the late minutes of the battle finished the affair in the Red Shields' favor. Several times during the contest the Pennsylvania crew would pull spectacular shots which nearly proved disastrous to the locals.

Work Well Together

Mr. and Mrs. James Stuyvesant of Eastbourne, England, were in a railroad wreck five years ago, each losing an arm. Today they are constantly together working as one person, she with her left and he with his right. In eating their food they also use both hands.

Not Camels, Either

There are certain creatures which never feel the pangs of thirst, for they are so constituted that drink is unnecessary to them, and they never swallow a drop of water in their lives. Among these animals are certain gazelles of the Far East and llamas of Patagonia.

SAFE DEPOSIT EXPERIENCES
By Mr. S.
I have always kept my bonds and other valuable papers at home in a trunk.
Last week I cut off two $25.00 coupons, but lost them on the way to the bank to have them cashed.
I then decided to keep my bonds in a safe place where I could get the coupon cashed without danger of losing them after they were cut.
So the next day I rented a safe deposit box for only $3.00 a year in the
